BRITISH DRIVE ON TEBOURBA

OWI ASSERTS FOOD SUPPLY 'ADEQUATE'

Disputed Report Says It Will Be 6 Per Cent Less Than Last Year.

NO DANGER TO HEALTH

Tea, Coffee, Butter Prospects Indicate Inconveniences For Consumers.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON -- The government told civilians today that their food supplies this year probably will be three per cent greater than the 1935-39 average but six per cent under 1942 when farm production reached a record high

There will be adequate food to maintain health, civilians were assured, but shortages from time to time and here and there will cause "inconvenience" and "exasperations"

In a long-delayed and controversial study of the nation's larder, the Office of War Information said that "the best judgment" as of April 1 was that it would be difficult to meet the original 1943 food goals—eight per cent above 1942 production unless weather is better than average.

Even if favorable weather and adequate supplies of machinery and labor should combine to bring about sharply increased production, military demands will operate to make less food available to civilians this year than last, the OWI said, adding that "like other wartime problems, the food situation is serious."

Nevertheless, it said, food supplies will be sufficient to provide civilians with an "adequate diet for health and vigor"

The report as finally released, with agriculture department approval, is a considerably altered version of a document prepared some time ago The original draft painted a much more gloomy picture, challenged production estimates made by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, and cautioned against stripping the

MORE RAIN

It May Thunder, Too, Then Turn Cold, Forecast Says.

Thundershowers were forecast for this afternoon to follow the intermittent blizzards which have been the despair of Mansfield Victory gardeners for the past four days.

Much warmer weather was forecast for this afternoon, but the respite probably will be only temporary, since the weatherman said it will be colder again by tomorrow morning. The temperature stood at 25 this morning and climbed to 46 at noon.

Mansfield escaped the worst of a blizzard which last night left six inches of snow in Geauga county, four inches in Youngstown, and three inches at Cleveland, setting an April record in a number of northern Ohio cities

CITES EX-CLERK

Report Says Clevelander Took Part in Collusion.

CLEVELAND -- (UP) - Mayor Frank Lausche today received a report from Stephen A Ryan, city investigator, that collusion and trickery were practiced by a former city hall employe to collect commissions on at least $90,000 which would have been paid in voluntary refunds to taxpayers.

The report charges that George W. Parratt, former chief clerk in the division of licenses and assessments, split commissions with outside agents who were notified in advance of persons to whom refunds were due and thus were able to contract for services.

Soviet Places All Railways Under Martial Law.

MOSCOW—(AP) - All railways of the Soviet Union have been placed under martial law by a decree which provides that capital punishment may be meted out to anyone convicted of criminally interfering with their operation.

(The Moscow radio said in a broadcast recorded by the Soviet radio monitor in London last night that "a small undisciplined minority is disorganizing the railway transport so vital in wartime.")

Richland War Loans Pass Half-Way Mark

Mansfield Soldier Does His Bit From Far Off India.

Richland county's second war loan campaign raced forward today, passing the half-way mark in the drive for $6,649,000.

Not great in the amount of money it represented, but dramatic and impelling in its circumstances was one purchase of $125 in bonds It came from a Mansfield soldier, a private, now stationed in India

The soldier is Pvt John W Keplar, signal corps, who has saved enough from his $50-a-month pay to send $125 home to his parents Mr and Mrs William Keplar, 398 Reed street, with instructions that it be invested in war bonds

PVT. JOHN KEPLAR

Keplar's bond purchase and those of hundreds of other Mansfielders raised the total subscription to $3,437,819.70. Yesterday's figure of $407,502.25 is made up of sales to non-bank sources, bringing the total purchases by non-bank sources to $2,327,819.70.

Total subscriptions are actually larger than reported, H G Brunner co-chairman of the drive said A notification was received yesterday from the state treasurer that the state would purchase $130,500 of bonds in Richland county. This figure has not been included in the total because Brunner is waiting an official statement on the sale from the federal reserve bank.

In the county and city today, special campaigns were making

Robeson Concert Rates Tops In 7 Years of Civic Music

By KEN WOODMAN

Paul Robeson completed the longest concert tour of his career in Mansfield last night, and he wound up the 70-odd appearances in a cannonade of applause.

The 1,300 members of the Civic Music association who packed Senior high auditorium called him back for a total of 13 encores in what was undoubtedly the most outstanding musical event in the seven-year history of the organization in the city.

Robeson himself, generously joined the audience in giving a share of the credit for the concert's success to the assisting artist, 24-year-old William Schatzkamer who played two groups of piano numbers and answered the enthusiastic applause with four encores

Structurally Robeson's program was a sort of United Nations tribute. He sang three Russian numbers, a French song, an English folk tune, two Chinese songs, and an excerpt from the famed "Ballad For Americans." As everyone wanted, he also sang those Negro songs which he has made famous while they in turn were making his name synonymous with great singing of colored spirituals.

Among the latter were "Old Man River," "Scandalize My Name," "Water Boy," the chain gang song, "Little David, Play On Your Harp" "Ezekial Saw the Wheel," "Steal Away" and "Joshua Fit de Battle ob Jericho"

Lawrence Brown Robeson's accompanist since he began his singing career, arranged the last two numbers as he did several of the other spirituals.

Brown surprised the audience by breaking into song along with the great bass-baritone in "Ezekial Saw The Wheel." Later he joined in other spirituals with a lustiness the listeners enjoyed

'Outlook Bright' For Success In Civic Music Drive

"The outlook for a capacity house for the Civic Music concert season next year is very promising," Rev. Glenn Lewis, president, said today as the association's membership drive neared its close.

Drive leaders stated that more members have been enrolled in the present drive to date than had been enrolled last year at this time. More than 300 new memberships have been reported by the 150 volunteer workers.

Mrs. William Layton drive chairman, explained that it is necessary for present members to renew their memberships as soon as possible due to the continuing new memberships. Renewals may be sent to the drive headquarters at the Ohio Fuel Gas company any time today un-

To the Readers of The News-Journal:---

The 13 billion second war loan is the responsibility of every one of us.

As Americans, we must lend our government every dollar we can during these next few weeks. No matter how much or how little our pay checks are, each of us must do his part.

The money is urgently needed to back up our armed forces now on the offensive with the weapons they must have to win and win quickly.

We are asked to give up our luxuries and even our comforts to match in a small way the sacrifices our men in the armed forces are making on the fighting fronts.

Remember: They give their lives—we are only asked to lend our money

Only YOU know how much you can lend. Don't wait for someone to come around and ask you to do your part.

Do it TODAY. Do it gladly. Do it to the utmost of your capacity.

Do it knowing that upon how much you do depends to a large extent how quickly we win this war.

BRICKER SET TO FIGHT FOR TAX REPEALER

Will Carry Battle on Meal Sales Levy To Committee Monday, Report.

GOVERNOR CONFIDENT

Bottled-Up Measure Would Save Taxpayers Estimated $5,000,000 Yearly.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS - Gov. John W Bricker will tackle the house taxation committee Monday in a bold attempt to force action on an administration-sponsored bill to repeal the sales tax on food served by hotels and restaurants.

He personally will appeal to the committee to report out the measure which has been sidetracked since the senate unanimously passed it Jan 26

If necessary, it was reliably reported, he will appear before the house to urge passage of the measure. The governor told newsmen that "a matter of this kind should not be bottled up in committee."

The bill he declared, should be brought to a vote on the house floor because "the people of Ohio are entitled to know who in the house are for tax reduction and who are against it"

"I am still interested in the taxpayers of Ohio and feel that they should at this time, when it is possible to do so, have the benefit of a tax reduction program," Bricker added.

Repeal of the sales tax on food, and prescription medicine (which the bill also provides) would save the taxpayers an estimated $5,000,000 yearly.

Informed observers were inclined to believe the governor was fairly confident of success before the house committee, because a rebuff might react as an unprecedented blow to his prestige in the legislature.

Bricker's decision to take such a step was announced late yesterday after a conference with Speaker William M McCullough of the house in which the governor said he felt "very keenly that the bill ought to be passed" He added he had depended upon house Republican leadership to carry out his wishes.

House Republicans discussed the issue in a caucus April 7 and, McCullough announced then, voted unanimously not to proceed further with the sales tax repealer.

CITY GETS PLAN

State Estimates Costs on South Main, Lexington.

Preliminary plans for the resurfacing of sections of South Main street, Lexington avenue, and Marion avenue and widening of the Main street-Lexington avenue intersection were submitted to city officials today by the Ashland division state highway office

Cost of the work inside the city will be approximately $68,000 while other resurfacing work in the city area but outside the corporation limits is expected to push the total cost up to more than $80,000, highway officials said.

The plans submitted today included the first official notification that the state will share the cost of resurfacing Marion avenue from Glessner avenue to Cline avenue Under a tentative agreement the city and state will share the cost equally The city, however, will contribute only to that part of the program inside the corporation limits.

Mayor W J. Locke said the program will be ready for action by city council at the May 4 meeting

Parents Awaited As 'Lost Johnny Remains In City

"Lost Johnny" who turned out to be Joseph Pertz, 13, of Akron remains in detention quarters of the Salvation Army today while authorities await arrival of his parents, who telephoned yesterday that they would come to take him home today.

But Joseph, who wandered wet and hungry into an Oak street road residence Monday night and said he was Johnny Corn, an orphan who had lost his grandmother's home, but later admitted his true identity and whereabouts, insisted he didn't want to go home.

He wrote a long letter this morning to his parents, according to Mrs. Paul T. Hoffman, matron at the Salvation Army She said the letter detailed that he had a nice home and that he wanted to stay.

Sheriff's officers, who talked to the boy's mother, reported that she said she would be unable to come for her son sooner because she and her husband worked nights and until 7 a. m. They were advised of his whereabouts Wednesday evening.

Both the northern and southern conferences were recessed yesterday after only brief sessions.

Steelman was expected to report to the joint wage conference, Washington's reaction to the appeals made by operators for government mediation in the dispute.

MAYBE IT'LL BE QUART-A-MONTH

Survey of Six States Shows Many Registrants Fail To Buy Liquor.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS Liquor drinking Ohioans may get more than that predicted pint-a-month allotment under a rationing program which state officials assert will be invoked in mid-May.

In fact, they may get a quart per month if their drinking habits are anything like those of tipplers in other similarly-affected states and if Buckeye statisticians' estimates on the impending ration plan are accurate.

A survey of six liquor monopoly states with rationing programs disclosed this today. Here's how it figures out

Four of six other monopoly states employing rationing reported only 50 to 64 per cent of registered purchasers were buying liquor regularly. The percentage was higher in the other two states.

Statisticians estimated that if 2,500,000 Ohioans registered in the rationing program, details of which are expected to be announced soon, the initial allotment would be only a pint a month

Allies Tighten Tunis Arc, Bomb Axis Airdromes

8th Army Continues to Patrol Front Before Enfidaville as French Hold Against Savage Blows; 450 Enemy Planes Lost.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—First army infantrymen drove to within 15 miles of the key road junction of Tebourba yesterday in some of the fiercest fighting of the Tunisian campaign, it was announced today.

In a series of local attacks east of Medjez-El-Bab, the Allied mountain line advanced to points between 25 and 30 miles from Tunis. Tebourba, once held by the Allies in the eastward push last fall, lies 18 miles airline west of the Axis-held capital.

Allied bombers and fighters continued their assaults upon Axis air fields in Tunisia, although the weather was bad, and it was announced that RAF Wellingtons struck effectively Wednesday night at enemy airdromes in southern Sardinia

Only patrol activity was reported on the Enfidaville line front, where Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's Eighth army again is massing strength for a climactic push to the north

The First army led by Lieut Gen. K A. N. Anderson by a series of infantry attacks in the mountains, gained the highest ground in northern Tunisia, overlooking the plain to Tunis

The Germans, in two savage counter-attacks yesterday, temporarily regained the 2,000-foot Djebel Ang, eight miles northwest of Medjez-El-Bab, but British infantry launched a counter-assault of their own and not only retook the peak but ground beyond it as well.

French forces who stormed forward Wednesday to capture the Djebel Sefsouf, seven miles above the village of Kararhoun on the southwestern rim of the Axis lines before Tunis and Bizerte, also were hard pressed by the Germans, but held their ground and captured more prisoners, it was announced.

The Eighth army, pulled up before the Enfidaville line, about 50 miles south of Sousse, continued to patrol its mountain front while awaiting artillery to blast the Germans from their positions.

Air operations over Tunisia were restricted by bad weather, the communique said, but medium bombers again raked the remain-

FOLLOW-UP: Flying 'Forts' Continue to Pound Jap Convoy

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—Flying Fortresses kept up an attack today on a Japanese convoy of three warships and six merchant vessels at Wewak, New Guinea, striving to add to the heavy blows dealt three merchantmen at the outset.

The convoy, spotted at dusk Thursday approaching the Wewak harbor with a light cruiser among the escort, was swooped upon at mast height by the Fortresses. Roaring down in waves spaced 15 minutes to a half hour apart the raiders quickly started an 8,000-ton cargo ship to sinking by the stern caused another of equal tonnage to list and forced a third of 5,000 tons to be beached

"We are continuing the attack," said today's noon communique

A destroyer and a gunboat were among the bombers' targets.

The Japanese have resorted to Wewak recently for the landing of supplies destined for overland delivery to the Allied-menaced base at Lae, some 325 miles southeastward along New Guinea's north coast The complete destruction of a 22-ship convoy in the Bismarck sea apparently convinced them it was too costly to try to reinforce Lae and nearby Salamaua directly by sea.

There was a lull in Japan's resurgent aerial offensive but the Allied air attacks continued. Fortresses bombed Lakuani airdrome at Rabaul, New Britain, 500 miles to the northeast of the Allied New Guinea base of Port Moresby. New Britain's Gasmata airdrome also was attacked by Fortresses whose bombs started fires and explosions.

TOAST: Tokyo Raiders Plan To Mark Anniversary April 18

By JOHN W. JARRELL
(INS Staff Correspondent)

WITH AMERICAN AIR FORCES IN CHINA—Eight American airmen who have been in China ever since United States planes bombed Tokyo last year announced today that they are planning an anniversary banquet Sunday night.

They will toast the success of the famous raid of April 18, 1942, and pledge to repeat the bombing many times before the war ends.

Only six officers and two enlisted men out of Maj Gen James H Doolittle's intrepid band of fliers who came to China still are here. All the others returned home or went to other war theaters

Stories these men tell of the raid on the Jap capital sound like fiction. All hope to be able to make return flights over Tokyo

"I want to unload some heavies right on Hirohito's palace," said Major Everett "Brick" Holstrom, red-haired Tacoma, Wash., squadron leader.

"That raid was the biggest thrill of my life and I want the same thrill again," said First Lieut. William "Foggy" Fitzhugh, pilot of Galveston, Tex.

First Lieut. Jacob "Shorty" Mensch of Staunton, Va., who is six feet and seven inches, said, "Ditto for me, boy."

Others of the Tokyo raiders still at this air base include Capt. Clayton Campbell of Orfino, Ida., a navigator; Capt. Horace Crouch of Columbia, S. C., navigator-bombardier; first Lieut. Lucian Youngblood of Houston, Tex., pilot; Technical Sergeant Douglas Radney of Mineola, Tex., and Master Sergeant Edwin Horton, jr., of Cape Cod, Mass.

All of these fliers have participated in many other raids since they unloaded bombs on Tokyo. They have given the Japs a similar taste of Uncle Sam's lethal medicine at Hong Kong, Canton and Hanoi They have learned a lot in the last year which they are anxious to put into effect by smashing the Nipponese at home again.

FRIDAY, APRIL 16, 1943 PAGE NINE

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

EDITOR'S NOTE—Raymond Clapper is on his way to Sweden, one of the few neutral "listening posts" left in Europe. He will report his observations there by wireless. The column below is one of several he prepared before leaving Washington.

WASHINGTON—With extremely heavy submarine losses the need for the most efficient utilization of war shipping is obvious.

Evidence presented to the war shipping administration by the CIO maritime unions indicates that we are far from the most efficient use of our ships.

Clapper

The evidence cites many specific instances of poor loading and of much time lost.

One ship leaving an American port loaded with a locomotive, tanks and trucks began pitching the first night out in a moderate sea. It lost its convoy and was obliged to make a run for the nearest port, arriving two days later with several tanks and tractors lost from the deck. Army and navy officers inspecting the ship found a 10-ton road-grading machine loose in one hold, slapping against the side of the ship. The cargo was secured and ten days later the ship made back to another American port. There 23 trucks were removed from the deck. Finally the ship returned to home port and 17 days were lost because of unwise planning of cargo loading.

Other incidents are cited of oil drums left unlashed on deck, of life rafts being lost because they were not properly lashed, and of injuries to crew because of improperly secured cargo.

In the South Pacific one ship lay in port more than 100 days because of delays in unloading cargo. Another one spent 59 days at anchor in a British Isles port waiting for orders. A certain ship sailed from an American port for a West African port. A hundred ships were waiting in the harbor. After a week's delay without being able to unload any cargo this ship returned to this side, thus making a round trip that was absolutely worthless.

Some months ago a certain ship had been scheduled to leave an American port for the British Isles. Instead it was diverted to Central America, picked up a load of bananas, and took them to the west coast. The ship returned to Central America for another load of bananas, which was discharged in a gulf port. Then the ship returned to her home port and proceeded to the British Isles.

A certain ship sailed from an American army base in October, bound for a North African port. She carried about 3000 tons of sand ballast on this trip into one of the ports at which the Allied expedition landed in November. The ship returned to this side in ballast without any return cargo. There might be some explanation for the return empty, but why were 3000 tons of shipping space to North Africa wasted in sand ballast?

A ship docked at a West African port where the docks were stacked with crude rubber awaiting shipment to the United States. No instructions were issued to pick up the return cargo. The ship left without the rubber, sailed down the coast, took on ballast and returned to the United States.

We are using airplanes to bring strategic materials from China and India. But one ship waited ten days at an Indian port for cargo and returned to the western hemisphere empty, a voyage covering two months.

As the maritime unions say in their memorandum, these examples demonstrate the confusion, mistakes and delays in the operation of precious ships. They all stem from the same basic cause—the lack of central operating authority over the shipping pool.

There is one central point which the maritime unions are stressing. It is that merchant shipping control should be centralized in the war shipping administration and really exercised. The maritime unions say the war shipping administration has on paper what looks like authority, but they insist that the present machinery is both inadequate and badly administered.

A multiplicity of agencies concerned with shipping results in jurisdictional rights and grabbing of shipping space without regard to maximum utilization of space as a whole. The maritime unions say that instead of WSA exercising its authority to pool all available space, to make allocations according to need, and to co-ordinate the assembly of ship cargoes, shipping space is forced to meet the jurisdictional demands of numerous agencies. In this tangle there are to be considered the war shipping administration itself, the army and navy, both of which operate cargo vessels, the maritime commission, BEW and WPB.

Why should a small harbor in the South Pacific be congested with a dozen ships each unloading 400 or 500 tons of cargo? Why should not that cargo be consolidated?

A brief, outlining all of the foregoing and much more, has been before the war shipping administration since February. Spokesmen for the CIO maritime unions, headed by Harry Bridges and Joseph Curran, have been here again pleading the case. Little progress apparently has been made on this problem of centralized and efficient use of our limited cargo space—the true bottleneck of the war.

TAFT OPPOSES 'CHEAP DOLLAR' POWERS OF FDR

Leads Fight Against Extending Authority of President To Devaluate Currency.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Strong Republican opposition to granting President Roosevelt further power to devalue the dollar arose today as the senate banking committee opened hearings on an administration bill to continue both the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund and the devaluation authority.

With Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau scheduled to urge continuation of the stabilization fund and the devaluation power which expire June 30, Sen. Robert A. Taft (R.), Ohio, paved the way for the Republican attack by vigorously criticizing extension of devaluation authority.

The depression-born law, which has been continued from time to time, authorized devaluation of the dollar by 50 per cent. Mr. Roosevelt, however, exercized only part of this power.

"Under the law as it exists and as they want it continued the president can devalue the dollar about 15 per cent more," said Taft, a member of the banking committee. "He cut it once to 59 cents and can cut it to 50, but this means 15 per cent of the present dollar.

"I plan to oppose devaluation. I don't think the president should have that power. The constitution says that congress shall fix the dollar and I believe that it should do so. I can't see any purpose in continuation of the authority.

"If any devaluation is necessary, congress can and should be the agency to do it. Certainly, there is nothing to be gained in a competitive devaluation with other nations."

Taft foresaw little opposition to extension of the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund "unless reports show that it has been abused."

"I think the committee might well suggest to Secretary Morgenthau that he can't use the gold in this fund for the international stabilization scheme without authority of congress," said Taft.

"He has said that his lawyers have advised him that he can establish the bank plan without congressional authority."

Administration senators were expected to rally behind the bill. Sen. Elmer Thomas (D.), Okla., already has predicted that the dollar will have to be cheapened in order to enable the country to pay the huge war debt.

24 CONVICTS ESCAPE FROM GEORGIA PRISON

Overpower Three Guards, Put Power Plant Out In Desperate Break.

BULLETIN

REIDSVILLE, Ga. — (U.P.) — One of 24 convicts who broke out of Georgia's Tattnall prison here early today was recaptured a few hours later near Lyons, Ga., when a truck carrying 19 of the fugitives overturned in a ditch. Lyons is 25 miles northwest of here.

(By United Press)

REIDSVILLE, Ga. — Twenty-four "desperate" criminals, including notorious Forrest Turner and Leland Harvey, broke out of "escape-proof" Tattnall prison near here early today, after overpowering three guards, wrecking a power plant and throwing the prison into darkness.

None of the guards was injured in the break, the biggest since the prison, often called "Little Alcatraz," began operations more than six years ago.

The 24 convicts were housed on the fourth floor of the prison in a section for the "worst" prisoners, officials said. They overpowered a night guard making a routine check and locked him in a cell. Fleeing to the front gate of the prison, they overcame a second guard and then proceeded to the power plant where the third guard was overpowered and the power plant put out of commission.

Armed with four pistols and a shotgun, the criminals, all of whom had previous criminal convictions and were serving terms ranging from three years to life, fled the prison in a state truck and a sedan.

The sedan was abandoned between Cobbtown, Ga., and Metter, Ga., about 30 miles from the prison, where the five convicts who were in it halted and seized a coupe driven by an unidentified man and continued their flight.

The remaining fugitives were believed in the truck. Prison officials were unable to confirm immediately a report that the truck had been found overturned and abandoned near Lyons, Ga., about 25 miles northwest of the prison.

Success of the break was attributed mostly to the convicts' reaching and disabling the power plant, which covered their escape with darkness.

State and county authorities throughout Georgia meanwhile were organizing in an effort to run down the men.

LABOR CASES GIVEN TO FDR

WLB Takes 17,000 Disputes To White House, Change of Policy Expected.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Revamping its out-dated wage policy because of President Roosevelt's stabilization order the war labor board today prepared to take 7,000 undecided requests for pay increases to the White House for final and definite settlement.

These 17,000 cases have been before the board as long as six months pending decision, and were suddenly thrown out when the president issued his "hold-the-line" order. All the cases were asking for increases on the basis of inequalities, which the board literally interpreted as invalid after the order was issued.

A great protest arose from unions and unorganized labor insisting that some review be given these cases that were already before the board before the new rules had been made.

The president's anti-inflation order was denounced by AFL members of the WLB who declared that it was a "flagrant violation" of the nation-wide no-strike agreement.

Telegrams of protest from labor organizations have also been pouring into the board, mainly objecting to the application of the new rules to pending cases.

At the same time, a labor member declared, this action will result in a change in the board's policy which has been out-dated since the April 8th order.

The board's wage increase policy was formerly based on five points; the new order eliminated all but two, the Little Steel formula, and substandard wages.

After last night's Civic Music concert at Senior high auditorium, Singer Paul Robeson generously asked representatives of The News-Journal "to give plenty of space" to his assisting artist, the young pianist William Schatzkamer. "If you don't have much room, take some space away from my notice for him," the famous colored singer requested. "I don't need it right now, and he's just getting started." Schatzkamer made his first concert appearance last year on a program with Robeson when the latter's assisting artist, a thereminist, was ill. Schatzkamer has been studying piano since he was four.

Major Charles L. Shafer probably got quite a kick out of a telegram sent him yesterday by his father-in-law, William Gugler, 136 North Mulberry street. A rumor circulated over the city that Major Shafer was dead reached such wide proportions that Gugler decided Major Shafer should know about it, too. Stationed at Roswell, N. M., Major Shafer is a former Mansfield physician. Only yesterday, Gugler was advised by letter that Major and Mrs. Shafer had spent an enjoyable weekend in Albupuerque, and Santa Fe.

The yo-yo season is here and Mansfield youngsters have taken up the sport in enthusiastic fashion. But a complication arose at the Y.M.C.A. when a group of youngsters discovered that their yo-yos were plainly marked, "made in Japan." They threw them away and then went to work in the "Y" woodcraft shop and made their own, according to Edward Moran, woodcraft instructor.

RETURN FROM RAID

LONDON —(U.P.)— A force of four-motored Allied bombers flew over the southwest coast today and returned more than two hours later.

TOLEDO JEEP TIE-UP ENDS

Strikers Vote Return To Jobs at Plant Making Parts For Army Vehicles.

TOLEDO —(AP)— A strike that halted assembly line production of army jeeps was ended today.

Frank Rossiter, unit chairman of the CIO-United Automobile Workers at the Spicer Manufacturing company here, said 150 strikers voted last night to return to work and vote later on whether to ask International UAW to authorize a strike.

The Spicer firm manufactures axles for jeeps assembled here at Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., and Joseph W. Frazier, president of Willys-Knight, said the one-day walkout at Spicer stalled his plant's assembly line and left 2,500 workers idle. He said production on the line, which normally is inactive on Saturdays and Sundays, would be resumed Monday.

The walk-out of employes in the heat-treating and forge departments grew out of a wage dispute that had been certified to the war labor board, R. E. Carpenter, Spicer's executive vice president, reported.

Union spokesmen, declining to be indentified, said it stemmed from an attempt of non-production workers to enforce demands for bonus payments similar to those paid production employes.

Frederick H. Bullen, the regional WLB's disputes director, said at Cleveland that heat-treating and forge department workers of Spicer had demanded increases in addition to a 5-cent hourly raise recommended by a WLB referees and now pending before the board in Washington. Bullen said the one-day walkout had nothing to do with the prospective increase.

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Underground activity in Nazi-occupied territory is proving such a rich source of dramatic material for the screen that you can look for the cycle to continue indefinitely. Practically all the major producing units are working on one or more pictures with this theme, in addition to those already released.

This follows the familiar Hollywood pattern of one successful picture setting a trend, and the trailblazer in this cycle seems to have been RKO's "Joan of Paris," which introduced Michele Morgan, bonafide French refugee, and gave Paul Henreid, a Nazi-hating Austrian, his first real break.

Coons

The great danger at present seems to be overdoing the subject, wearing out its freshness. But lately there have been indications that the story departments have anticipated this repetition, and the settings, which at first concerned chiefly France and Norway, are becoming more varied.

Assassination of Reinhardt Heydrich proved such a natural as story material that both United Artists and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer turned out pictures on the subject, U.A. under the title "The Hangman Also Dies," already released, and Metro under the title of "Hitler's Hangman." U.A. made the most of its opportunities, holding the premiere at Prague, Okla., and getting a send-off from Bohus Benes, consul-general for the Czech government-in-exile, and Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk. Brian Donlevy is considered to have done a particularly good job in the role of the man who shot Heydrich.

All the action in this story takes place in Prague. The upcoming Metro picture tells the story of the eradication of the Czech town of Lidice, a theme which offers quite as many possibilities as the story of Prague.

New in locale, too, are "Chetniks," recently released by Twentieth Century-Fox, which concerns Yugoslavia and "Assignment In Brittany," just finished by Metro, with Jean Pierre Aumont starred.

These titles, past, present and future, give you an idea of the extent to which the studios are tapping Europe for material:

"The Avengers," English-made, about Norway; "One of Our Aircraft Is Missing," United Artists release, set in Belgium; "The Moon Is Down," Twentieth Century-Fox, set in Norway; "Edge of Darkness," Warner Bros., set in Norway; "Commandos Strike at Dawn" and "Attack By Night," Columbia releases both set in Norway; "Above Suspicion," Warner Bros., concerning an Englishman in Germany; "Appointment In Berlin," Columbia; "Reunion In France," a Metro story with Joan Crawford; "At Dawn We Die," English-made picture set in France; "The Purple V," a Republic picture about a flier forced down in Germany; "Casablanca," Warner picture set in Morocco, and "This Land Is Mine," an RKO picture in the making with Charles Laughton starred.

When you've seen all those, you'll know there's a war going on.

Tyger Trackmen Meet Lorain Steelers Here Tomorrow

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

The Ohio Athletic conference headquarters are not in Mansfield, but the conference bigwigs seem to like this city. Three of their most important meetings in the past 12 months have been held here, chiefly because of Mansfield's central location in the conference membership, and partly, I suspect, because this is not a college town and the residents and press can not be expected to be overly excited about what the bigwigs decide to do.

Whether this is true or not, it seems only fitting that when the executive committee of the conference, meeting here last Saturday, decided to give all college athletes a break for the duration as an emergency measure, the biggest break of all went to a Mansfield baseball player.

I didn't think, at the time, that the conference had eased up its rules to the extent of making professional ball players eligible for college diamond teams, but that seems to be the case.

Mansfielder Stan Partenheimer, southpaw hurler who has signed with the Louisville Colonels for the coming season, has been declared eligible for pitch for Wooster college, and has been given permission by the Colonels to hurl for his college team.

And college baseball being what it is, a guy who was good enough for Canton in the Mid-Atlantic, and Oneonta in the New York State loop, and for a tryout with Louisville, should do all right in the Ohio conference.

The war-time rule changes made by the conference in the past year have been all to the good for Partenheimer.

First, although he is a freshman and a professional baseball player, he was permitted to play basketball at Wooster this past winter under the easing of war-time regulations. Now he is eligible for the sport in which he is really good.

How good is this young Mansfield southpaw who moved here from Akron two years ago? Conference teams can read his record, and weep.

Hurling in the New York State league championship playoffs last fall, Partenheimer won four of the five games Oneonta needed for the title.

And in the big game that decided the championship he turned in a 4-0 shutout. They don't play that kind of ball in the Ohio Conference. In fact most of the conference brand of ball is no better than the American Legion kid game.

"We don't care if you just throw your straight ball," Wooster Coach Johnny Swigart told Stan. "That will be good enough in this league."

Pool Champion Regains Form

The total score for the six blocks played is Ponzi 756, Mosconi 418.

Mosconi had a high run of 75 to win his first block in the 1250 point match for a $1,000 purse. He picked up 73 points but still trails Ponzi by 338.

Ponzi led in total score for all blocks of the match, so Mosconi under the rules continued to shoot until Ponzi accounted for a run of 125. By the time Ponzi got his 125, Mosconi had pocketed 191 balls.

Mosconi has only four remaining blocks, two tomorrow and two Saturday, in which to overcome Ponzi's lead if he is to retain his crown.

HOGAN FAVORED IN TEXAS OPEN TOURNEY

DALLAS —(AP)— Ben Hogan, two times the nation's top money winner on the links, and Ed Dudley, president of the Professional Golfers association, topped the field of more than 200 golfers opening play in the 36-hole war benefit Texas open today.

Hogan, although he will compete after a long layoff, is the accepted favorite to win the top prize of a $500 war bond.

Yanks Best Of Loop's Poor Clubs

Marse Joe Has Worst Looking Team of Career.

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK —(AP)— The New York Yankees this year are the worst-looking team Joe McCarthy ever has managed in the big leagues, yet everybody is picking them to win another American league pennant and there is no reason to believe the majority isn't right.

* * *

You only have to look once at the Yanks this spring to realize the changes war has wrought on baseball and if you can stop shuddering long enough to look at them two or three times, you start naming over their rivals in the hope of finding some other pennant possibility.

The Yankees have only one regular infielder, Joe Gordon, and one regular outfielder, Charley (King Kong) Keller, back from last year and as a result McCarthy is having to make over a whole ball club for the first time in his life. He is transforming Pitcher John Lindell into an outfielder, making a third baseman out of a rookie shortstop, Bill Johnson, and transforming another rookie, Second Baseman George Stirnweiss, into a shortstop.

As it now is pieced together, the Yankee infield is pathetic. But in another month Frank Crosetti will be free of the suspension imposed upon him by Commissioner Landis for pushing an umpire in the world series and there is a possibility Red Rolfe may rejoin the club in the summer after his season as baseball coach at Yale ends.

The Yankees have lost Joe DiMaggio and Tom Henrich from the outfield, Buddy Hassett and Phil Rizzuto from the infield and Red Rufting from the pitching staff. Yet other clubs have been hit equally as hard.

The Boston Red Sox should finish second, just as they have in four of the last five years. Manager Joe Cronin has had to give up his entire outfield—Ted Williams, Dominic DiMaggio and Lou Finney—as well as Shortstop Johnny Pesky, the leading rookie of the league a year ago, and two good pitchers, Bill Butland and Charley (Broadway) Wagner. However, Cronin still has a dangerous club.

Whether the Sox make a battle for the pennant depends on the outfield and particularly on old Al Simmons, who is trying hard to make a comeback. Another veteran, Pete Fox, is a fixture in rightfield.

Back of these two clubs may come a three-way scramble between the Cleveland Indians, St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers, their ultimate positions dependent largely on the draft. On a hunch we would place Cleveland third, St. Louis fourth and Detroit fifth.

This leaves the Washington Senators, Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia Athletics to bring up the rear. Washington is much improved but vulnerable to the draft. The White Sox are uncertain defensively and lack power, while the less said about the A's the better.

Lou Revises Mound Plans

Hopes To Have Bagby Ready For Opener.

MIDDLETOWN —(AP)— As the Cleveland Indians moved here for an exhibition game today with the Cincinnati Reds Manager Lou Boudreau was concerned about getting Jim Bagby in shape to hurl the opening contest against Detroit next Wednesday.

Cancellation of their scheduled tussle with the Reds at Dayton yesterday was the fourth such occurrence in the last four days.

The repeated cancellations have forced the Tribe's pilot to revise his pitching plans. He had hoped to give each of his five or six most important hurlers a seven-inning turn against the National leaguers but such an arrangement is impossible now with only three games of the barnstorming trip left.

Bagby has been assigned to pitch Saturday's game of any in Cincinnati, and then rest Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Paul Dilcott and Allie Reynolds drew the Indian mound assignments for today's game with Mel Harder scheduled for duty Sunday.

Outfielder Jeff Heath who ended his holdout Sunday, failed to arrive at Dayton yesterday as per schedule but the Indians have had enough experience with war-time travel difficulties to appreciate the problem of getting from Seattle Wash. to Dayton O.

Clyde Shoun, Elmer Riddle and Ray Starr were the probable pitchers for the Reds today.

Manager Bill McKechnie says the Reds' lineup for opening day against the St. Louis Cardinals will be about what it has been in exhibition games. Lonnie Frey will lead off, the second batter is undecided, Max Marshall is No. 3 and Frank McCormick the clean-up, followed by Eddie Miller, Bert Haas, Eric Tipton, and Ray Mueller will bring some power to the lower half, McKechnie hopes.

PVT. JOE STILL CAN CLOUT THAT APPLE

SANTA ANA, Calif.—(AP)— Pvt. Joe DiMaggio's spring training has been somewhat different this year and not much time is devoted to baseball at Santa Ana army air base, where he is stationed, but the Yankee Clipper hasn't lost his batting eye.

In five games Joe has pounded out six hits from 18 official times at bat.

Kent Rummels Take Title

Hold 4-Game Margin as B-League Closes.

Kent Rummel Coal company keglers copped the championship crown in the Commercial "B" bowling league last night as the loop wound up its season at Colony alleys. The Rummels had a four game margin over Jones Chris-Crafts, although they dropped a 1-2 decision to the Crafts last night.

J. Schmidt turned in high series of 635 on closing night, and F. Nagel turned in a 604 total. Les Malaska chalked up high game of 232.

Mansfield Printing took team honors with a 2770 total, and Casto Market rolled high game of 971.

DELAWARE PARK RACE MEETING CANCELLED

WILMINGTON, Del. —(AP)— Transportation difficulties today caused cancellation of the 30-day racing program scheduled this year for Delaware Park.

The board of directors of the Delaware Steeplechase and Racing Association, a non-profit group, announced they had postponed application for a race meeting until May 29, 1944, "when the regular 30 days of racing will be held."

Champs Smile as Pretty as They Swim

CHICAGO—The National A. A. U. women's indoor swimming and diving championships always abound in beauty and the recent meet here was no exception. The pretty mermaids are (left to right) Brenda Helser, Portland, Ore., 220-yard free style champion; Joan Fogle, Indianapolis, Ind., individual point champion; and Marilyn Sahner, New York City, who placed third in the 220 but lost her 100-yard free style title.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
(Pinch Hitting for Flu-stricken Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.)

CHICAGO — (AP) — Kenesaw Mountain Landis, 76-year-old commissioner of baseball, eased his feet down from his littered desk and fixed his piercing eyes on his questioner.

"No one knows what will happen to baseball this summer," he blurted. "It would only be a guess. But I have every hope that we will finish the season, as usual, and that the pennant races, in both league, will be exciting."

Landis is an excellent listener, but pulls no punches in expressing his views on almost everything—except baseball. His hair snow-white, he sits in a high-back leather chair, behind a desk literally covered with papers, statues of baseball stars, an airplane clock and various documents piled two or three inches deep. His offices, high in an upper Michigan boulevard sky scraper, overlook cold, blue Lake Michigan.

"How old are you?" he snapped. He was informed honestly and readily.

"Then, how in hell do you manage to stand this cold weather?" he asked. "It's brutal."

Landis, who usually spends his winter vacations in Bellaire, Fla., and visits the various major league training camps before returning north, spent the winter at home in Chicago in keeping with the times.

"I had a couple of slight colds; otherwise, my health was fine," he said. "But I don't like cold weather. It's brutal."

Landis believes that spring training in the north, above the so-called Landis-Eastman line, proved satisfactory to the players. He said he hadn't received one complaint, either from players or club officials.

Landis is pleased so many major league stars—such as Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Ted Lyons, Bob Feller, Red Ruffing, Johnny Beazley and a host of others—have entered the service of their country.

"As prominent as they were, they did the wise thing in joining the armed forces as quickly as possible," he commented.

Yet, those daffy guys are picking 'em, Lukie.

Luke Sewell, manager of the St. Louis Browns says anybody who tries to pick a pennant winner this season must be balmy. Good pitching, even steady pitching, will tell this year, more than any other, he says.

"You'll see from six to eight 20-game winners in each league," Sewell predicts. "Those long ball hitters those .320 men, have been thinned out. Rox Weatherly, instead of Joe DiMaggio, will be in the Yankee line-up. Joe McCarthy will be afraid now, sitting on the bench, instead of the opposing pitcher being scared to death."

PITTSBURGH JACKIE BOOKS LAST FIGHT

PITTSBURGH —(INS)— Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson, former NBA featherweight champ, will probably be making his last fight for the duration when he meets classy Willie Pep, present featherweight titleholder next Monday night in a 12-round non-title match at the Gardens here.

Wilson said today he was waiting orders to report for his first physical examination in a few days and that he'll be in the army shortly.

Fritz Clips With a Rip Zip Snips Quips That Rate Pips

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Instituting a new fifth freedom of our own (the right to clip a quip) we present herewith from the columns of Ohio sports scribes a few bon mots and what nots.

With the sports program dwindling, and the second war bond drive growing the fun-loving sports editors have adopted a slogan adaptable to both the necessary bond drive and their practically unnecessary jobs.

The slogan: "We'll give everything but up!"

Here are the guest stars, and their star jests:

Pete Minego, Portsmouth Times: They've changed that old story about the traveling salesman and the farmer's daughter. The new version, since rationing, is that the salesman married the farmer's daughter for butter or wurst. We never sausage a joke. The old version had its points too, Pete, and I don't mean rationing.)

* * *

Rex Hess, Mansfield News-Journal: It took a war to do it, but at last I've heard a bowling bug admit his favorite sport isn't the most important thing in the world. This explains the dazed look I'm wearing these days. Now if I can get a golf bug to admit the same, I'll know the war has come to Mansfield. (A lot of these bowlers, Rex, have shifted from the alleys to the Allies—and are still knocking 'em over.)

Frank B. Ward, Youngstown Vindicator: The Phillies have completed spring training—Owner Bill Cox and Trainer Harold Bruce are in good shape. Looks like the Phillies have no more chance in the National loop than a filly has in the derby—where only one (Regret, 1915) has copped the roses in some 63 years.)

James E. Doyle, Cleveland Plain Dealer: You can write your Kentucky Derby story right now, and in just three words—"the Fleets in!" (Yeh, you can't Count Fleet out of that top spot—but if the odds stay at 4-5 we'll put our two bucks in war stamps, a sure winner in the human race.)

Paul Horning, Columbus Dispatch: Hugh McGranahan, OSU assistant coach, sat outside the Buck dressing rooms as Ohio's all-novice grid aspirants trotted one by one to the practice field. Mac hardly recognized any of 'em. Then Les Horvath, last year's right halfback, looking like a lost sheep among all the new lambs, appeared. Mac's face lighted, and he said: "Les, why don't you trot in and out a couple more times so I'll think there are more of you?" (Yeh, dental student Horvath can fill a huge cavity in that backfield.)

Paul Creger, Upper-Sandusky Chief-Union: Small town sports, except among the high schools, are out for the duration. But we'll have plenty of sport around here this summer, listening to the howls our city cousins put up about transportation difficulties and the absence of DiMaggios. (No transportation problem in the cities this year, Paul. The fans will spend the summer "riding" the umpires, as usual.)

* * *

Frank Y. Grayson, Cincinnati Times-Star: The draft at least has taken from the big league managers the worry of cutting their squads down to the player limit. (Certainly they'll find it easier to cut the excess beef off their teams than to cut the beef on the table, if it's anything like we're getting here.)

* * *

There you are—the puns of the week and we don't blame you if you decide that all the jokesters have gone to war.

Count Eligible For Preakness

BALTIMORE —(AP)— Count Fleet was eligible today to start in the 53rd running of the $50,000-added Preakness stakes, climactic feature of the closing program of a 20-day race meeting which opens at the Pimlico race course today.

* * *

Maryland Jockey club officials announced the Count's owner, Mrs. John D. Hertz of Chicago, had paid the $1,500 fee required to make the speedy son of Reigh Count eligible for the second leg of the traditional triple crown race classics for three-year-olds.

The Count, shortest-priced winter book favorite for the Kentucky Derby on record was not among the 49 colts originally named for the Preakness, which will be run May 8.

Meanwhile Pimlico officials anxiously watched today's attendance and mutuel handle for some initial indication of the success or failure of the spring meeting, which is the only racing Maryland will see this season. Most fans were forced to rely on trolley service.

Visitors Pack Power In Field Events

Send Small Squad Because of Lack of Transportation.

TWO TEAMS that went down in defeat a week ago will be hitting the comeback trail tomorrow afternoon when Mansfield high's Tyger trackmen meet the Steelers of Lorain at 2 o'clock.

Mansfield, with an even-Steven record to date, a victory over Newark and a two-point loss to Columbus East, will be after its second victory of the scanty panty campaign, while the Steelers are still looking for their first win.

Lorain was beaten 51-67 last week by Rocky River, showing strength in the field events but lack of speed on the cinder path. The Steelers will be meeting a team whose strength lies in the opposite direction, speed on the track and weakness in the field.

Rocky River spotted Lorain nine points, not even competing in the discus because they had no platter pushers, but the Rivermen made up for that by taking eight firsts in the 14 events, and enough seconds and thirds to more than balance the ledger.

In the mile, half mile and 440, Rocky River took both first and second places for an 8-1 margin in each event, and the Tygers are also strong in distance hoofing.

It appears that tomorrow's meet will be a matter of matching strength when the points are added up. However transportation difficulties encountered by the Steelers may make the Tygers long-odds favorites before the starter's gun sends the first race down the track.

Latest word from Lorain was to the effect that Coach Harold Pryor intends to bring a squad of only 15 to 20 athletes to Mansfield because of lack of transportation facilities, and that the squad may be cut even further.

Which means the visitors will have a full day's work competing with a squad of 30 or more boys in the Tyger togs.

* * *

Tomorrow's meet is a late addition to the schedule, filling an open date for both schools. For Lorain it will be preparation for meets with Elyria and a second tilt with Rocky River and also for the Cleveland West Tech relays.

Coach Harry Mehock of the Tygers wanted tomorrow's meet because he believes his boys can learn more in actual competition than they can in everyday practice, and he is pointing them for the district meet.

MUNCIE, Ind. —(AP)— Having jumped to a 2-1 lead in the series with the Tigers, Manager Frankie Frisch of the Pirates planned to use Hank Gornicki and Bobby Klinger today, if Hank's cold permits.

Safety Cabs Lead League

Regain First Place With Shutout Victory.

Safety Cabs went back into first place in the Women's Commercial "A" bowling league last night at Colony alleys, breaking a tie with Hergatt Lettering by a 3-0 win over DeMilo Beauty shop, while Hergatts were taking a 2-1 victory over Clyridon Manufacturing.

Arlene Peters turned in top score for the league with 512, saving the keglerettes the embarrassment of a 495 deadhead count for first place.

E. Mayer had high game of 213.

Engle Proves Bond Barnum

Publicity Stunt Sells $100,000 In War Bonds.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn—(INS)—Another highly successful publicity stunt was scored today to the credit of Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga Lookouts, whose colorful publicity exploits have earned him the title of "Barnum of Baseball."

He didn't have to take a promised plunge into the chilly waters of the Tennessee river, but he got the $100,000 war bond purchase he was angling for, just the same.

His agreement to jump into the river came during a radio speech Engel was making in support of the bond drive. J. M. Kemp, Chattanooga banker, phoned the radio station and said he would buy $50,000 in bonds if they would pull that fellow Engel off the air.

Joe came right back and declared he not only would quit the air but also would go and jump into the river if Kemp would make it $100,000. Kemp agreed.

With much fanfare, Engel started for the river yesterday afternoon in a big red, white and blue bus. On its side was painted the sign, "Joe Engel headed for river." After circling through the business district several times, the bus, now followed by a big crowd in cars and on foot, headed for the river.

But there coast guardsmen brough the stunt to a halt, announcing that Lieut. A. F. Hanse, captain of the Port of Chattanooga, had forbidden it as a violation of the laws governing the risking of life and limb. A squad of city officers also was on hand to stop it if the coast guard didn't.

At this juncture the expectant crowd began to suspect that maybe Joe knew all the time that the coast guard wouldn't let him jump.

Banker Kemp was a good sport, however, and bought the $100,000 bond anyway.

PRICES UNEVEN ON STOCK MART EARLY TRADING

Pre-Easter Demand Boosts Retail Sales 14 to 19 Per Cent Over 1942.

NEW YORK—Prices were fractionally uneven in today's early stock market transactions.

Up a shade at a moderately active opening with General Motors, Chrysler, Standard Oil (NJ), Goodyear and Southern Railway. Small declines were posted for Bethlehem and General Electric.

Notice was taken of the Dun & Bradstreet compilation disclosing increased pre-Easter demand put this week's retail sales for the country as a whole at 14 to 19 per cent above the comparable 1942 period. It was recalled, though, that at this time last year the post-Easter lag was under way.

ASKS BOOST

Ickes Urges 35 Cent Raise In Crude Oil Price.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes told the Patman small business committee today he had recommended a general average increase of 35 cents per barrel on the price of crude oil but that Price Administrator Prentis M. Brown has not yet answered his letter.

Ickes said he wrote the letter on April 7.

Earlier, Brown had withheld comment when questioned about possible boosts in petroleum prices. He said, however, that he believed President Roosevelt's recent anti-inflation order left the way open for price increases which would aid in prosecution of the war.

Relief Ship Docks Loaded With Colds

A news item tells of a relief ship reaching the Arctic coast in the spring with many of the crew suffering from colds, and entire settlements promptly took down with colds almost at once. But we "fortunate" people enjoying the so-called benefits of civilization have to be even more careful.

When you use the laxative aid of the famous World's Tonic to help check a cold, you will find it gentle and sure with no cramps or griping after effects. It is good for young and old for it contains no habit forming narcotics. Get World's Tonic at Miller, Hursh, Weinberger, Muir and all other modern Drug Stores. —Adv.

Opens at Ohio.

With most of the action taking place in glamorous society circles of San Francisco, Universal's "The Amazing Mrs. Holiday" opens tomorrow at the Ohio. The film stars Hollywood's song bird, Deanna Durbin. Produced and directed by Bruce Manning, the story is described as one of timely interest and importance. Noted players in the cast include Edmond O'Brien, Harry Fitzgerald and Arthur Treacher. Miss Durbin lends her golden voice to the picture, and all of the musical selections are interwoven with the story movement.

Horror United.

Hollywood's two horror champions have been united. They are teamed in Universal's "Frankenstein Meets the Wolf Man," coming to the Madison tomorrow. New shocks and shudders are promised in this picture which has Ilona Massey and Patric Knowles as its co-stars. Bela Lugosi appears as the monster. Lon Chaney has the Wolf Man role and others in the cast include Lionel Atwill and Maria Ouspenskaya. The co-feature is another chiller, "The Mysterious Doctor." In this film, murder and superstition are combined in the method of war sabotage.

Dizzier Than Usual.

There are times when Red Skelton regrets that he never learned to smoke cigarets. The comedian, who abstains from tobacco, was called upon to smoke a cigaret in a key scene in "Whistling in Dixie," M. G. M. picture now at the Ritz. The action was long and complicated and, as a result, Red tried to give a convincing impersonation of a man enjoying his smoke. Although he suffered no ill effects from the eight-hour-a-day smoking spree, he did admit that cigarets made him "dizzier than usual." Co-attraction at the Ritz is "The Ghost Rider," starring Johnny Mack Brown.

Taylor at Majestic.

Robert Taylor plays the lead in "Billy, the Kid," current attraction at the Majestic. "They Made Me a Criminal," starring John Garfield and Ida Lupino, is the second film.

BRITISH DRIVE ON TEBOURBA GAINS GROUND

Allies Tighten Arc Around Tunis, Bizerte; Bomb Sardinia Airfields.

ing Axis air fields in the battle area and big Wellington bombers visited southern Sardinia to start large fires on the Decimomannu airfield, it was announced.

Allied fighter planes were able to execute offensive sweeps and patrols over the forward areas and fighter-bombers attacked enemy tanks and vehicles. A large explosion followed one of these attacks. Two enemy planes were reported destroyed during the day while all Allied planes returned to their bases.

The air offensive over Tunisia and the Mediterranean already has cost the enemy more than 450 planes in combat alone since the beginning of the Mareth offensive March 20. An additional 150 German and Italian planes have been destroyed on the ground, officers estimated.

The German air force in Tunisia has been so weakened that fighters are sent up only to repel Allied bombers and they have avoided combat with the large American-British fighter sweeps over the Tunis area.

With more than 30,000 Axis prisoners already collected in the determined drive by combined British, American and French troops toward the Tunis-Bizerte bridgehead, the fighting had simmered down to a series of vicious local attacks and artillery action, but the final phase was unmistakably at hand.

Veteran British troops of the First army, who have been in the forefront of the fighting around Medjez-El-Bab since November, dug in on newly captured heights in their sector looking down on the great plane leading to Tunis. They routed strongly-entrenched German and Austrian Alpine troops Wednesday to capture Djebel Ang, a height 30 miles west of Tunis. Two hundred of the enemy troops, who had dug in for a bitter struggle, surrendered.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army meanwhile was reported bringing up artillery to the line stretching westward from Enfidaville, about 50 miles south of Tunis, where Rommel apparently has chosen to make his fight. Field dispatches reported enemy batteries in the mountain positions were making progress difficult for the Eighth army.

(The Berlin radio reported yesterday that British Commando troops attempted to land behind Axis lines in the Cape Serrat area, 35 miles from Bizerte, Wednesday night. The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said Axis batteries opened fire when the Commandos reached certain coastal obstacles and added "the British withdrew to their boats which, despite several hits, succeeded in escaping.")

The U. S. Army Air Forces said traffic into the important port of Ferryville at the southwestern end of Lake Bizerte had ceased as a result of bombings. Every building in the dock area and four of the six known oil storage tanks in that area were hit.

Allied Fliers Sweep North Europe Area

LONDON —(UP)— Royal Air Force fighters, taking over from the bomber command, kept up their sweeps over the occupied continent today, destroying an enemy fighter during offensive operations, it was reported authoritatively.

The action continued fighter operations started yesterday when U. S. Eighth Air Force planes aided the RAF in offensive patrols, ranging over northern France and destroying two enemy fighters.

An air ministry communique said fighter command intruder patrols were carried out over a wide area of northern France, Belgium and northwest Germany last night while fighter-bombers hit at shipping off the channel coast of France.

Duce Makes Islands 'Military Area'

LONDON -- (AP) — Premier Mussolini was reported by the Berlin radio today to have declared Sicily, Sardinia and smaller islands at Italy's southern flank as an area of military operations in a move interpreted here as throwing up defenses hastily against expected Allied attack.

The action was preceded by a shake-up of the Italian police, which some London observers said was an attempt with potential slackers and saboteurs who might impair the defense of Italy. The Italian premier acted in his capacity as commander-in-chief.

Reds Hurl Air Power At Key Nazi Points

MOSCOW — (AP) — The Red army is throwing a mounting force into the bombing of German military objectives and cities, the latest feat of Russian fliers being announced as a raid on a German airdrome on the Leningrad front where 13 German planes were destroyed on the ground.

The noon communique told of the exploits of a band of Russian fliers who bombed and strafed the German airfield, setting fires to buildings in the area as well.

The raid came on the heels of a Russian long-range attack on Koenigsberg, the third bombing of that East Prussia city, and an assault on Danzig, the first one this year.

Robeson Concert Rates Tops In 7 Years of Civic Music

But Robeson did more than sing spirituals and encores. He had a meaty program that gave full play to the magnificant range, volume, and tonal excellence of his voice.

Particularly notable were his singing of Beethoven's "Creation's Hymn" and Moussorgsky's "Prayer and Death of Boris" from the opera "Boris Godounoff." The religious fervor with yhich he opened the concert singing Mendelssohn's aria "Lord God of Abraham" from "Elijah" was contrasted keenly with his humor in the English folk song "Oh, No, John" and Jerome Kern's "I Still Suits Me" from Showboat.

Robeson even put life and humor into the threadbare "Shortnin' Bread."

The artist said he was especially happy to wind up his tour in Mansfield.

"I have a personal interest in this area," he staid, "both because my good friend Louis Bromfield lives here and because I used to play professional football for Canton.

Robeson still looks very much like the All-American end he was for two years while attending Rutgers university; but he insists he's too heavy.

"Right now I weigh about 235," he said. I'm going to take off 15 pounds of that and get back in 'fighting trim' for my role in Othello.

He referred to the Theater Guild production of Shakespeare's tragedy in which he will play the stellar role of the dusky Moor when the play opens with Margaret Webster in New York next fall. Robeson previously played the same role in London with immense success. He recalled, last night, that he began his career as an actor in the lead of O'Neill's "Emperor Jones" and that it was while doing this play with the Provincetown Players that he gave his first concert as an aside. He was an immediate success and turned to concertizing when the play ended its run.

Robeson says he hopes to come back to Mansfield.

He wants to visit Malabar farm and he expects that Othello will play this section after its New York run.

The singer explained that the paraphernalia on the stage in front of him during the concert was "Cynthia." "Cynthia" is his own invention. It enables him to hear exactly how his voice sounds while he is singing, yet does not affect the sound beyond the footlights in any way. It does not amplify his voice but merely lets him hear it on stage from the wings.

"How did Cynthia get her name?" he was asked.

"When Harold Burris-Meyer, the sound technician, and I were working on the device everyone kept asking us what it was. Well, we didn't know, since we were just putting it together. So finally, one day, somebody jokingly started to call it 'Cynthia' and that's what it's been ever since."

The whole program was marked by a pleasing informality. The singer explained many of his numbers before singing them and gave translations of the foreign text.

Robeson's sincere interest in Schatzkamer, his assisting artist, proved his unselfishnes. But Schatzkamer's playing spoke for itself, too.

Unknown to most Mansfielders, the young pianist made an immediate impression with his playing of Bach's Organ Prelude in G. minor, arranged by his teacher Claude Siloti. Proceeding to Brahms' "Intermezzo in E major" and Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6" he displayed alternate strong clarity of tone and the gentlest of pianissimos. His dexterity rivaled any veteran pianist heard here recently.

Yet it took Shostakovich's "Polka" from the Golden Age ballet to really show the pianist's forte. He did the satirical little piece with complete finesse and laughing wit.

He also played three preludes by George Gershwin, Debussy's "Feux d'Artifice" and "La Fille aux Cheveux de Lin" and Scriabine's etudes in D sharp minor and A major.

Robeson put the climaxing wartime touch to the concert by singing the Chinese Soldiers' Marching Song and "The Peat Bog Soldier," a song which originated in the concentration camps of the Nazis and has become a war cry of oppressed peoples.

He closed the concert by leading the audience in "The Star-Spangled Banner."

It might be appended that Robeson is peculiarly able to do the international kind of program he did last night. He is a linguist of ability. And his diction in English, French and German was impeccable. It probably was equally good in Russian and Chinese, but somebody else will have to vouch for that!

Committee Tables Bill to Convert Dog License Funds

A bill, supported by Richland county interests, which would convert surplus funds in excess of $5,000 from the county dog license funds to humane organizations was tabled indefinitely following a preliminary hearing yesterday in the organization of state government committee of the Ohio legislature.

None of the supporters of the measure were on hand at the hearing although a delegation of four local men and Henry Lessingwell, head of the Cleveland Humane Society, were present to offer opposition. They were: County Commissioners Guy Stewart, Ray Hout, County Dog Warden William Miller and Philip Wolfe, president of the Richland county Humane Society.

The bill was filed by Representative John Catlett by request of Attorney C. H. Workman, Louis Bromfield, Gordon Ensminger and others, Catlett said. It would provide for funds in excess of $5,000 left after all animal claims and attendant expenses were paid, to be diverted to humane organizations.

rapid headway. Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, through its labor management committee is organizing a campaign among the workers to buy an extra bond this month in addition to the amount they buy through the payroll deduction plan.

Mrs. Louis J. Ott, chairman of the women's committee, reported today that three of the 60 participating clubs in the women's club campaign have gone over their quotas already. The Charity club whose goal was the sale of bonds amounting to $3,100, or enough to purchase 200 overcoats, has already attained that goal. Mrs. Edward Loughridge is chairman of the drive in that organization.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Paul Sturges, jr., the Buckeye Garden club has sold enough bonds to buy 1,000 suspenders, 2,000 identification tags, 2,000 hand towels, 1,000 bath towels and 2,000 barracks bags for our fighting men. Goal set for the organization was $3,260.

Contracting to sell enough bonds to buy 250 woolen coats, or $2,882.50 in bonds, the Philomathean club has done that. Miss Barbara Hartman is in charge of the drive in the organization.

Townssip meetings are being held this evening at 8:30 at the home of Harry Griffith in Plymouth township and at the Grange Hall south of Bellville in Jefferson township. Marshall Moore and Paul Eliot, two of the drive leaders will speak at these meetings.

Meanwhile today Washington reported the Second War Loan drive was also well on the way to the half-way point of the $13,000,000,000 goal which Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., intimated yesterday was no longer the "ceiling."

Morgenthau said subscriptions not yet counted would total well over $6,000,000,000 but he warned that people should not relax on the theory that "the push is over."

"We will take all we can get—the more the better," was the way he put it.

Only the banks will be held to their $5,000,000,000 goal and that already is over half subscribed, the treasury said.

Meanwhile, the nation's women were out selling bonds today to outfit soldiers, sailors and marines. Harriet Elliott, chairman of the women's division of war savings, announced that women of 47 states and the District of Columbia were "buying" uniforms and barracks gear for service men by selling bonds to cover the cost of that equipment. Women of the 48th state, Washington, were selling bonds for flying fortresses, minesweepers, pontoon bridges, parachutes and surgical beds.

Mrs. Evelyn Lovelady, 22, who came with her husband three weeks ago from Cement, Okla., said she garrotted her daughter, Leona Frances, last Nov. 4 with a piece of string. She later denied the confession.

"I told her to hush," she told deputy sheriffs, "but she kept on crying. Then this power that comes over me once in a while told me to do it. I took Leona on my lap and tied a string around her neck."

Admiralty Says Two Nazi E-Boats Sunk, Others Damaged.

LONDON—(U.P.)—An admiralty communique today said that two German E-boats were destroyed and four others damaged and another driven off in action off the east coast of England Thursday.

The communique was issued after the German radio had reported that Nazi motor torpedo boats had engaged superior British coastal patrol vessels off the British coast and had sunk a large heavily armed freighter.

In a recapitulation of air and ground losses in the New Guinea fighting up to April 1, a spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur estimated today the Americans and Australians suffered 10,531 casualties, among which were 4,554 killed or missing and 5,977 wounded, many of the latter since recovered. On the other side of the ledger he placed Japanese casualties at 38,000 of which almost all were killed. The Japanese landed in northeast New Guinea in January, 1942.

Promises M'Arthur Aid, as Planned

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Gen. Douglas MacArthur will receive air reinforcements to the extent necessary to implement operational plans for the southwest Pacific developed at the Casablanca conference, informed quarters said today.

The plans, it was said, will govern the general plans of operations in Australian and other Pacific areas for the next several months.

MacArthur has been apprised of these plans, officials said, adding that they were at a loss to explain his plea for more aircraft and the chorus of warnings from Australia that the Japanese are on the verge of attacking that continent.

ADEQUATE FOOD SEEN BY OWI

Report Forecasts Enough For Health, But With Some Inconveniences.

American larder through lend-lease shipments.

The revised report was criticized as "sugar-coated" by some of 14 OWI writers division employes who resigned.

OWI Director Elmer Davis described the report as the best which could be presented at this time and on the basis of statistics available to the agency. He said delay had been caused by conflicts in data submitted by two branches of the agriculture department. He denied charges of the complaining writers that the report was "sugar-coated." Davis added that its publication was not hastened by the resignation of the writers.

Even in its revised form, the report still carries a sting for the civilian population. On the basis of prospective 1943 production, civilians will have:

11 per cent less meat than in 1942;
27 per cent less canned and shell fish;
21 per cent less butter;
11 per cent less cheese;
15 per cent less canned milk.
51 per cent less canned fruits;
3 to 25 per cent less of various fresh vegetables;
27 per cent less canned vegetables;
6 per cent less dry beans;
22 per cent less sugar;
21 per cent less rice;
29 per cent less coffee;
60 per cent less tea;
12 per cent less cocoa.

There will be, however, about the same amount of fresh and frozen fish, eggs, turkeys, fluid milk and cream, lard and other cooking fats, fresh citrus fruits, canned fruit juices, dried fruits, tomatoes, potatoes and sweet potatoes, and corn, oats and barley for human consumption.

On the more favorable side, OWI presented this picture:

30 per cent more chicken than in 1942:
37 per cent more margarine;
9 per cent more apples;
13 per cent more frozen fruits;
7 per cent more wheat;
13 per cent more rye.

All these figures were in terms of total supplies available for civilians after military and lend-lease needs are met.

The report noted that the food situation is not entirely predictable and that civilians must expect inconvenience.

"The word 'inconvenience' is used deliberately,' OWI said. "Barring widespread crop disaster, the kinds of food troubles that will affect most American civilians will not menace life or health."

The OWI added, however, that "assuming complete success for the program, there still will be more or less severe civilian shortages of certain foods from time to time, and we must be prepared to accept and face them."

Before they are cut, even the most fabulous diamonds appear dull and lifeless. Only after cutting do diamonds acquire fire and brilliance. The finer the cutting, the more brilliant the diamond. Ordinary diamonds are cut with 58 facets, regardless of price. These facets appear on the top surface, and on the underside of the diamonds, with the sides neglected. The MULTI-FACET* method of cutting adds 40 facets around the sides of the diamond. This cutting emphasizes the color; therefore, no off-color diamonds are used. MULTI-FACET eliminates the rough edge, helping to prevent chipping while being set or worn. The extra facets provide a myriad of light-catching surfaces . . .

on the basis of supplies obtained in the past few months.

Liquor Director Don A. Fisher could be expected to double the pint-a-month allotment, they figured, if only 50 to 60 per cent of registrants purchased liquor in each ration period.

Iowa reports showed its 263,000 registrants averaged purchases of a pint weekly although the allowance is a quart a week.

Liquor purchases by Virginia's 900,000 registrants averaged 55 to 60 per cent and in North Carolina 64 per cent. Both are pint-a-week states. Utah allows a quart weekly but purchasers average only 57 per cent.

Idaho officials estimated 95 per cent of registrants in the state's newly inaugurated rationing program were making purchases regularly while the state of Washington listed 700,000 registrations for its 2,000,000 population. Officials explained that service men stationed in the Pacific coast state probably swelled the total.

West Virginia's liquor control commission said liquor rationing would be started "in the very near future" but initial allotments were not announced.

CHAPTER XIV

"All right, Harry, I'll rent an apartment with you," Rosemary was saying, there in the car. "I am your wife, and that's that. But first, here's what you've got to do."

Harry Boyle squeezed her a little and laughed.

"First, here's what I've go to do?" he teased. "Listen, baby, the first thing I've got to do is kiss you!"

He did so. Rosemary did not respond. She was struggling inwardly to keep on with her act. But she did close her eyes lest he see the fear and hatred in them, and in his conceit he mistook that for a quiet ecstacy of her own.

"I'll look for the apartment," she half whispered.

He got out of the car and let her out, too. She forced herself to smile and laugh a little, for this had to be a part of her pretending, she realized.

"Sur-r-re, we'll get a couple of drinks first, then we'll go"

They went into the Athletic club. Neither saw a distinguished looking man staring at them, 50 feet down the sidewalk. Neither knew that man had driven to Option because of some inner fury, or that he turned quietly and went on away now, sick of heart.

Harry picked a small table where they could have privacy, and over his liquor he leaned close to Rosemary again. "We're gonna get along now, kid I knew you'd come around! Old Harry always gets 'em That's why I waited, see? Listen, you stick by me and we'll make ourselves plenty of jack What you wanta slave in some damned office for? You don't wanta do that. You're smart, su-r-re! Now listen, there's plenty of jack to be had while this war's on. They're getting theirs, we're gonna get ours"

She wondered who "they" were. Of course, there were other crooks in the world, other war profiteers and grafters. But he seemed to reason that their existence was excuse enough for his own dishonesty and disgrace. Rosemary said nothing. This acting was extremely hard.

"Ain't you gonna take your drink?" he encouraged.

"I—I don't want anything, Harry. Please."

"Okay, baby." He drank it himself, then breathed in gusty satisfaction. "Now let's get down to cases."

"Harry I—I must tell you that I won't rent the apartment with you unless—"

She stopped. She was going to say "unless you promise" something. But all at once she realized she was being a fool. You couldn't trust any promise from this man! Days ago she had found herself planning to appeal to Harry's pride and patriotism in order to make him release the building materials he had cornered out here in this western county. But almost immediately she knew a person of his type had neither patriotism nor pride.

It was Boyle, she knew, who held up construction of the new airport and cadet training center He had bought all the lumber available for six months at least. At the psychological moment—just when Little Boss St. Clair would be desperate—Harry or his agents would step in and offer the lumber at exhorbitant profit, and Little Boss would have to pay. No, Harry Boyle wouldn't care what he did so long as he made a fat profit.

But if she would go live with him, in effect sell herself to her own husband, then he might call off the lumber squeeze. This was the deal she had come to Option to make with him.

At this moment, she realized this was a conceit of her own. Harry Boyle didn't love her. Didn't think that much of her. The world was full of girls and if any appreciable amount of his lumber profit had to be involved, he would take an obvious course. While she was thinking, desperately, of all these facts, Harry just stared at her. Keenly. Shrewdly.

"Listen," he said, warningly, "you're trying to rook me."

She looked up in quick alarm.

"Oh Harry, I—"

"Did that stuffed shirt send you here? St. Clair?"

"Harry! . . . No!"

He paused, studying her again. And in this charged moment, she knew for sure that no appeal she might make—however personal, however good—would touch him He could be handled only by force and so—in quick desperation again, she decided on a threat.

Before she could phrase it, he spoke "Listen, baby," there was no oil in his tone now, "nobody's going to make a fool out of me! You're soft on this St. Clair."

"Harry!"

"Don't lie to me!"

"But I—!" Her consternation left her confused.

"You're sold on him, and that's the truth. Well listen—I'm not."

"Harry, you don't know what you're talking about! I work for Mr. St. Clair and I work hard. I've never done the slightest thing to indicate to him that—"

"So-o-o what!" he snapped. "Listen, I'm not a fool! I saw you with him. Back in Washington. Here at this hick railroad station. Calf-eyed, by george! Both of you!"

"Harry, you -- you —" sobs threatened her now.

"Listen, baby. It's a fact, and that's that. Now I'm gerous, see. Told you that when I married you. Now look—you'll be wanting a divorce."

"No! I—I don't believe in divorce! Marriage is too sacred!"

"You trying to say you love me?" This was sarcasm.

"No! No! I never did and I never will. And I won't live with you. Never. I was crazy to come here. I'll never, never—"

"Stop raving," he ordered. "You're right, you don't love me. And that's mutual, kid. But you do love this St. Clair, and you'll be wanting to give me the old Reno. Well, you can't—unless!"

He had snapped that, in cold warning. Silence held her for a long moment.

"What do you mean?" she half whispered, fearfully, then.

"I mean you can divorce me, only if you help me on a little business deal. From the inside."

Growing Pickles In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

With point rationing presenting problems in the economical preparation of meals with tasty variety the growing of pickles and relishes in the Victory garden seems at least part of the answer. This also means the planting and cultivation of the succulent cucumber.

In order to have extra early cucumbers the seeds should be started indoors about the middle of April. Since cucumbers do not transplant easily it is a good practice to start them in paper cups as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph When the seedlings are ready to be planted out of doors cut off the bottom of the paper cup but leave the paper sides intact around the ball of earth, and plant cup and seedlings as one. Do not plant outdoors, however, until all danger of frost is past.

For early small varieties of cucumbers have the hills four feet apart each way. For the large late cucumbers plan the hills farther apart, four by six feet is usually ample spacing.

The late cucumber seeds can be planted in circular hills about one foot in diameter. Cucumbers are heavy feeders and placing one or two shovelfuls of manure in the bottom of each hill gives the plants wonderful stimulation. Place four inches of soil over the manure and plant the seeds one-half inch deep, 10 or 12 to each hill. After the young plants are making good growth, thin them out and leave only four of the sturdiest to each hill, as illustrated.

Fine for YOU!
...BUT NOT FOR YOUR MOTOR!

Today's longer "rests" give motor oil more time to drain down from or dry off of vital engine parts.

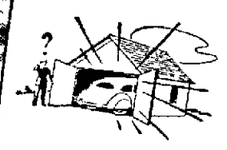
Today's START UPS can put as much as 200 miles of wear on your motor—*in one minute!

If you had an idea that a nice long rest was good for your car, think again. Think about the miles of unnecessary wear you put on your motor when you start up. Then, think how little more it costs to protect your motor against "start-up" damage—by using V.E.P. Alloyed-Oil. Remember, V.E.P. is the new alloyed oil which also rids your motor of harmful sludge, carbon and varnish, guards against corrosion—protection you need more than ever, now. For with today's slower speeds, shorter trips, your motor seldom gets hot enough to boil the moisture formed by combustion of gasoline —leaving much more sludge-forming water to contaminate your motor oil. Don't delay. Every mile of wear saved puts America a mile nearer victory. Stop in at your Marathon Station, switch to V.E.P., today.

V.E.P. is the new, different Alloyed Oil that makes your motor last 50% longer than it would with ordinary oil

STEER CLEAR OF UNNECESSARY "START-UP" DAMAGE BY USING V.E.P. ALLOYED-OIL

When you fight wear...you fight for America!



WHAT IS "START-UP" DAMAGE? Now that your car stands idle longer, ordinary oil has more time than ever to drain down from or dry off of cylinder walls and pistons . . . leaving them without effective lubrication when you start up. During the time it takes the oil to get back on the job, real damage can be done.

V.E.P. STAYS ON GUARD! This different alloyed oil has a "magnetic-like" action which makes it cling to cylinder and piston walls for days—even weeks. You have effective lubrication before you step on the starter. And that's mighty important with repairs parts so scarce.

PROVE IT TO YOURSELF with this demonstration at your Marathon dealer's. Compare V.E.P.'s protection with that of ordinary oil. Feel the film of V.E.P. which stays put to protect your motor against "start-up" wear.

Experts say there can be as much wear in one minute—on a motor starting up with "dry" piston and cylinder walls as in up to 200 miles of "warmed-up" driving.*

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, APRIL 16, 1943.

The Japanese Refuse To Wait

THERE was an ominous tone in the final words of the message from General MacArthur on the occasion of the first anniversary of the fall of Bataan: " . . . that it be not again too late."

The same calm confidence which led to mistaken belief that Pearl Harbor was "impregnable" and that the Philippines were "safe" is seen in expression of "firm conviction" by Navy Secretary Knox that "the naval situation in Australian waters is satisfactory."

But from General MacArthur comes blunt warning that the Japanese control sea lanes and approaches to Australia and that a gigantic enemy combat fleet stands ready for action only three days' sailing time from Allied defense positions on New Guinea.

It is only by maintaining American air superiority that the enemy threat to New Guinea and Australia is being held in check, with the outcome to be determined by the extent to which defenses can be strengthened by augmenting the air power now at MacArthur's command.

Present concentration of Allied force against Hitler is working greatly to the advantage of the Japanese, and it may be wondered, in the final analysis, if there is justification for continuing to minimize the importance of the Jap menace in the Pacific and permitting build-up of enemy fighting strength to the point of completing the conquest of China and seizure of Australia before any considerable amount of Allied power is thrown in that direction.

While General MacArthur's statement cannot be interpreted as a cry of alarm, it makes clear that offensive power in the southwest Pacific now lies solely with the Japanese, with every reason to believe that they intend to use that power to the limit.

Clear understanding of the desperate situation in the Far East should spur American production of war materials to a maximum and induce speediest possible strengthening of defenses in that theater of war.

Prominent Woman To Speak Here

AN UNUSUAL opportunity to gain better understanding of some of the international problems that are of vital importance to the United States will be open to Mansfield people next Tuesday evening when Mrs. Louise Leonard Wright, of Chicago, noted lecturer, traveler and student of foreign affairs, comes here for a public meeting at the First Presbyterian church, under sponsorship of the Mansfield League of Women Voters.

As a result of her first-hand study of international problems and active participation in various conferences devoted to associated subjects, Mrs. Wright has won a place of national prominence in this field of thought.

In addition to being a director of the National League of Women Voters, she is president of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, consultant to the office of Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs, and director of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.

Mrs. Wright's talk here will be on "World Trade and the Peace" and she is scheduled to appear in Cleveland next Thursday for the final lecture in a series of four, with "We Need Reciprocal Trade Agreements as Steps Toward World Peace," as her subject.

It is information that can be secured from students of international relations, such as Mrs. Wright, that will have value in arousing greater public interest in supporting sound national policies following the war and the League of Women Voters is to be commended for providing opportunity for a large audience to hear this lecture.

Air Line Rivalry Looms

CONSIDERABLE competition is developing among America's domestic air lines for good position in the world network after the war. One company has requested governmental permission to take over a Mexican air line from a point on the Rio Grande to Mexico City. This would be extended to Buenos Aires after the war. Another company wants to fly from Boston over the North Atlantic to Scandinavian and other European countries. Other requests are also on file.

Pan-American, the dominant American company in international commerce, proposes to unify all of the nation's foreign air lines by permitting domestic companies to have stock participation in Pan-American. The result woud be, in effect, one large international company. All this awaits international diplomatic action.

Many of the American routes would be over Canadian territory and an agreement with the Dominion would be necessary. Canada is also planning a trans-Atlantic route.

Sectional Phraseology of Canning

CANADIANS "put down" their fruits and vegetables for the coming winter. In some parts of this country, they "put up" their winter foods and goodies.

In other parts they merely "put away." The phraseology probably depends on whether the first pioneers in that region who provided winter food by drying, or using salt or sugar or heat, thought of themselves as putting it down cellar or up on a shelf, or hanging from the roof, or merely away in some cooler but unfreezing spot like the wet sand root-cellars still existent in many localities.

But whatever they do and however they say it, no one has yet improved on the famous answer of the farmer's wife to the question "What are you going to do with all those tomatoes?"

"Oh, we eat what we can," she said, "and what we can't, we can."

According to a Washington observer, the New Deal is losing its touch with the "common people"—just about everybody having already been "touched."

Quote: "A professor is a man whose job is to tell students how to solve the problems of life which he himself has tried to avoid by becoming a professor."

It is a rural Missouri paper that reports an outbreak of "what is either indolent fever or intentional flu."

Planes and Young Pilots Needed

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Many workers will be compelled to shift their lines within the year to come. The recent speech of Philip Murray, of the CIO, only tells part of the story. Incidentally Mr. Murray is the first important figure to confirm publicly what was said in these dispatches earlier — that overproduction in many war lines had resulted from the amazing job done by American industry.

Mr. Murray is wrong about one particular. He mentions, among other lines which he hears are curtailing, an airplane factory. It is true, of course, that the production of particular types of planes may be discontinued. The plants producing them will be retooled, however, and they will start up again, as rapidly as possible, producing planes better designed for the jobs that must be done on the war fronts.

As was stated in these dispatches earlier, there are just two lines of production which the government would still like to increase. These, ships and airplanes, cannot reach any mark which WPB would regard as overproduction so long as Germany and Japan are still in the war. Probably not until BOTH have been knocked out.

BUT THERE is one serious problem in addition which is responsible for Mr. Murray's mistake about airplanes. We are not quite as well off as we would like to be on the training of aviation personnel. Due to this there are a number of spots in the country where planes are piling up. Those planes could be used on every front in the war.

There is no limit to the number of planes which can be utilized for submarine patrol, though there is a sharp limit to the number which can be utilized in China until some better method of supplying them there can be worked out.

This lagging of the air personnel training does not look like lagging where it is being done. We are turning out pilots, and navigators, and bombardiers, and gunners, faster than had been thought possible a little while back. But the fact is also that the manufacture of planes has been even faster, and hence, comparatively, the training of personnel is behind.

THIS EXPLAINS why the navy is getting round the prohibition of enlistments, as best it can, without too much fanfare, by taking in boys of 17, not yet at the draft age, who want to become aviators. And its a good thing for boys, and their parents, to know. If the boy in your home has any inclination toward aviation—if he wants to get into that branch of the service—it would be an excellent idea to look into the situation right now, instead of waiting until he is on the draft list a year or some months hence.

There is no immediate prospect of the draft calls being curtailed. Pressure for a smaller army will ease, rather than increase in the months to come. The answer to that is that the demand of war production, save in the two lines of planes and ships and the materials they use, will slacken sharply. The demand for aviators, and farmers will remain until peace comes.

That Post-War Job

JIM WONDERS what he's going to do after the war. Most nights at camp the fellows get together, talk it over. They all want to do something worthwhile, something they can be studying right now. And a lot are fixing to walk right into an engineering or radio job or go back down on the farm. But Jim favors writing. Doing something like this columnist stuff.

"Always did like writing," says Jim. "Beat my class in Elmwood Hi. Yet everyone I ask tells me what a tough grind it is. Why? Of course, I couldn't start with a college degree but neither could several million other fellows. And I wouldn't expect any Astorbilt salary at first. But plots come natural to me—got scads of 'em filed away. Then where's the jinx?"

There's no jinx about writing, Jim, that doesn't apply equally well to any decent job. There are only two MUSTS you must observe and they're simple but, strangely enough, they throw the average youngster for a loop at his first try.

You've got to get over the far flung and entirely cockeyed notion that writing is one of those take-it-or-leave-it affairs which you dash off whenever the inspiration hits. Writing is nine-tenths plain plugging. You grab your job and stick to it until it's finished. After which you go on to the next assignment and proceed as before.

You don't wait until you're inspired . . . unless you're gunning for grief. You don't even hang around until you hear of a good opening. You just take any job that will let you eat and do your "larnin'" after the counter is scrubbed or the milk cans scalded or you've caught up on your figgerin' for the day. Then you drag out that busted old typewriter and start creatin'. At which point we come to

Must Number Two.

WHAT are you going to write? Unless your dad's a Maharaja, you're going to write what people will read. And what will they read? They will read something that applies or appeals to their own lives. It may also appeal to you there's no law against that. But first and always, it must be tied up with REAL LIFE. Fantastic fancies and philosophies, poetic piffle, "Jeweled Gems of Thought"—nix on all these. People are tired, bewildered, irritated, lonely. Their lives are filled with sweat and monotony. They want somebody who understands all this . . . something that will put new color and self confidence into their dreary days. And they are hoping that you can turn the trick.

Can you? I don't know. I don't know how much you're willing to pay . . . how much humiliation, discouragement and failure you're willing to risk and still keep your chin in the air. But I do know the one way by which you can achieve the needed wisdom. And that's—BY LIVING IT. You can't talk about living until you've gone through the mill yourself. You can't share the other fellow's shackles or taste his tears until you've had your own shins bruised and gulped the same brine.

Writing isn't a drawing room art or spotlight career. It's a ragged shepherd, seeking a star, and finding it in a manger.

If you're willing to do that, then you've just about the finest job on earth waiting for you after the war. But if you aren't—stop before you begin. Give or quit. Everything else is phoney.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"I could get even with you if you had some hair to pull."

Timely Editorial

The War Cost Assumption.

Disclosure of the treasury's financing program—two more drives this year to raise $25,000,000,000 apiece following the current drive to raise $13,000,000,000—should puncture any and all illusions about the need for holding the line against inflation.

The treasury's borrowing program assumes that during 1943 there can be taken from the pockets of the American people and the vaults of their banks $70,000,000,000 worth of credit. On top of this, $30,000,000,000 will be removed by taxes.

The program is meaningless without stabilization. The War Bonds that must be bought and the taxes that must be paid both come out of the difference between earning power and the cost of living. If the latter cannot be kept down, the difference disappears; there is no way on earth to make earning power stay ahead of inflation. Thus, the whole plan for financing the war rests on the assumption the cost can be borne by citizens earning more than they need to spend.—Canton Repository.

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Head Visits Argentine Labor Leaders

WASHINGTON—The Good Neighbor pilgrimage of youthful, go-getting Eric Johnston, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, was unique in that he called upon Latin American labor leaders. It was the first time a U. S. business baron had done so.

One night while visiting with Argentine businessmen Johnston announced that the next day he would call at labor union headquarters, explaining that he was anxious to understand not only Argentine business sentiment, but also labor. A few minutes later, an Argentine manufacturer came up and said:

"You are a brave man, Mr. Johnston, a very brave man."

"Why?"

"For calling upon those labor leaders. You are very remarkable."

Next day Johnston made the call, armed with letters from Bill Green and Phil Murray, who vouched for the fact that he would keep labor confidences. It turned out to be quite an occasion, featured by good Argentine beefsteak and champagne.

Later the head of the Argentine rail union wrote to Jim Carey of the CIO a glowing report of the visit, hoped that more U. S. business men would follow Johnston's example.

Capital Chaff.

In reporting that WPB's vice-chairman Ferd Eberstadt had been rejected for an army commission, this column was in partial error. Eberstadt was rejected only for combat duty, being two years over the age limit. A captain in the field artillery in 1917 and an intense patriot, "Eber" wanted to see action again. The army says he will be more valuable in the war department. . . . Congressman Michael Feighan of Cleveland took the bull by the horns and urged a constitutional amendment by which the president could submit a peace treaty to the people if vetoed by the senate. He pointed out that 33 men in the senate can block a peace treaty whether the nation likes it or not.

Stabilizing World's Money.

SECRETARY Morgenthau's plan for a five billion dollar stabilization pool to keep world currency firm after the war was subjected to a lot of cross-examination at a closed-door session between Morgenthau and the house foreign affairs and coinage committees.

Congressmen bombarded Morgenthau with questions regarding the fact that the United States would ante up $1,800,000,000 for the world stabilization kitty. This would be considerably more than the amount to be contributed by any other nation to keep the world's currency firm, and the congresmen seemed critical.

Not many of them said much about what we were going to do with the billions we have buried at Ft. Knox, if we didn't put it to work somewhere.

Morgenthau explained that the amount which each nation kicks into the stabilization pool will be based chiefly on national income, though some nations with no gold reserve to ante up can offer trade credits.

However, the amount of money put up will not determine voting power, the secretary of the treasury explained, adding that we would never get other nations to co-operate on that basis. He also revealed that neither Russia nor China, two important allies, had replied to the invitation to attend the post-war stabilization conference.

Britain Outvotes U. S.

THE BRITISH commonwealth of nations will have two full-fledged members with voting power, in addition to the United Kingdom, Morgenthau explained. They will be Australia and India.

"That," he added with a grin, "is one of the sore spots."

"What will happen if the five billion dollar fund is exhausted?" asked Congressman Compton White of Idaho.

Morgenthau replied that there was no chance of this, or of the U. S. A. being left holding the bag for $1,800,000,000, because the five billion would be operated as a revolving fund.

Henry Knew Onions.

DESPITE frequent heckling, the treasury chief made an excellent and logical presentation on why international currency stabilization would be necessary to maintain world trade after the war. He said we could follow either of two courses:

(1) The British (Keynes) plan, calling for a managed currency for international trade, under which export and import business would be conducted on world markets with the "Bancor" unit, backed by credits instead of gold, or, (2) the U. S. plan, calling for gold backing of currency on world markets.

The British plan would weaken our position in world trade, Morgenthau asserted, because it would enable other nations to devalue their currencies after the war, which might eventually drive the U. S. dollar out of world markets.

"We face an extraordinary situation after the war," the treasury secretary said. He admitted very frankly that, by lending money to other Allied nations to promote their war industries now, we were building them up as competitors, as well as customers, after the war.

"Inasmuch as we provide the funds for United States participation in the post-war stabilization pool, don't you think that congress should be represented at the coming conferences?" inquired Representative Andrew Somers of New York, chairman of the coinage committee.

"I believe congress should be aware at all times of what is going on," Morgenthau replied. However, he showed no enthusiasm about having representatives of congress present at the conferences.

Merry-Go-Round.

WHEN John L. Lewis wanted to present the case of the United Mine Workers to the nation through full page ads, he picked the same advertising agency (Albert Frank-Guenther Law) which handles advertising for J. P. Morgan and the country's biggest financial houses. . . . Two enterprising naval men from New London, Yoeman Ritson and Signalman Hawes, are working on a weekly news-sheet for the navy similar to the army's "Yank." So far the navy never has had a regular authorized news-mag and enlisted men clamor for one.

Some Odds and Ends From Ernie's Notebook; Tragedy and Comedy Mix In Tunisia.

SOMEWHERE IN TUNISIA—Little items: Petty's drawing of his famous girl stretched out on her stomach musing about something is tacked up in hundreds of soldiers' billets in North Africa. . . . It seems that at least a fourth of the young lieutenants I meet are expecting Blessed Event news from home about now.

The German photographic plane that covers every important sector in Tunisia daily is known in the trade as "Photo Freddie." . . . On days when more than one comes over, the second is called "Freddie Junior" . . . Once in a while you can make out the plane as it flashes in the sun, but usually it's so high you can't see it at all, you just hear it.

I HEARD a funny story about a road strafing the other day. Three soldiers were riding in a jeep when strafers came diving. The soldier in the back seat was riding backwards so he could keep a watch to the rear. The jeep took off across the fields, with the strafers after it. The rear guard kept calling "Right" or "Left" to indicate which way the driver should turn to dodge.

But finally it got too hot for the boys up front, and they just bailed out and left the jeep running. That left our hero alone, riding backwards in a driverless jeep, yelling "Right-Left" to nobody, while the bullets splattered around. Finally he looked around to see why the driver wasn't obeying. Then he hit the dust.

IN SOME parts of Tunisia the sand is soft and yellow and moist, and it's almost a pleasure to dig slit trenches in it, the digging is so easy. But it does have its drawbacks.

I know of two cases where soldiers were sleeping in narrow slit trenches and the loose sand slid in on them without waking them up. They were smothered to death.

Our tank warfare has shown two things—that a large number of our tanks catch fire when badly hit, and that although the fire is all over the place in a few seconds, the majority of the crews are able to get out safely and straggle back to camp.

In wartime living you relearn little things you had forgotten years ago. Such things, for example, as lighting a cigaret simply by putting it over the chimney of a coal-oil lamp and puffing.

* * *

ONE DAY I was up on a mountainside with some troops who were holding a forward outpost. They were in such an inaccessible and perilous place that they were getting just one meal a day, and artillery fire was whining over their heads constantly. Yet right in the midst of that a truck arrived at the foot of the mountain, and here came soldiers lugging up sacks of mail. The boys were getting their letters right on the firing line.

You hardly ever hear Italian soldiers referred to as Italians. It's either "Eyeties" or "Wops" or "Guineas."

In one case the reason for abandoning "Italian" was a concrete one. In this case a mountain lookout reported that "Three Italians" were coming up the hill. The officer who heard it thought he said "three battalions," and ordered a heavy barrage dropped in that area.

When the lookout called back to ask why such heavy shooting, the misunderstanding was straightened out. But from then on, all men in that outfit were instructed to refer to Italians as "Guineas."

* * *

I SAW the tragic remnants of a jeep that got a direcet hit from a 500-pound German bomb. Three soldiers were in it, and they were blown to disintegration. Nothing was found of them to bury.

But searchers did find scattered coins, knives and bits of clothing. One soldier had a pocket Bible, and about half of its sheets were found.

Another had a large pad of currency—bills just folded over once. And the reason I'm telling this story—those bills were blown together with such force that it was impossible to get them apart. You couldn't even strip off one bill with a pocketknife. The blast had vulcanized them together, without tearing any holes in them.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Graduate, 1943

THE red haired, freckled boy was 18 yesterday. He stands six feet, with lithe and wiry body. Played football last fall and center on a village basketball team. I often admired his supple gait and purposeful stride—the verve and color that he brought to every undertaking.

"And what are you going to do, now that you're 18?" I wondered. He blushed.

"Why—I'm going to the army, of course. I want to go."

"But why?"

"I—wonder, sometimes, myself. My mother asked me that same question, and I couldn't answer her. I really don't know, but I think about going, day and night.

"It might be that so many of my buddies are gone and I just wouldn't be left out. Maybe I want to do the popular thing—maybe it's because it's adventurous and different. I want to see the world—don't we all—if it's from a submarine or an airplane or even a lifeboat!

"The boys say they're tested as to what they can do best, and given that line of duty. That sounds sensible to me."

"And what is your line?"

"Taking pictures. I have a movie camera and three others, one in natural colors. Send them away to have them developed, but they're too expensive. . . . I'll take my physical next week, and then I'm ready. My cousin John was home on leave and I never saw him look better. He says things go like clockwork, and he's learned a lot . . . he shows it, too!"

"How do your parents feel?" I asked.

"They don't like to see me go—and yet I know they'd be disappointed if I didn't want to. Seems like, inside themselves, they're backing me to do something they hope won't actually have to be done—if you know what I mean. But a boy has to leave home sometime, and there's no better excuse than this war to do it. It'll be harder for them than for me—a week seems like a month to me, but it goes too soon for them. Every train that whistles, every bus that honks on the highway, every transport that zooms across the sky, makes me thrill all over. School is out in six weeks, but my grades are good. I could get my diploma. I don't see why I should wait."

"And yet you don't know just why you are going!"

"No-o. To defend our country. I've been taught not to hate anybody, and to play fair, even if the other fellow cheats. Maybe that's what Mom and Dad—worry about."

FORMAL INITIATION GIVEN BY SORORITY

Miss Hilda Bellamey, Miss Margaret Kissling and Mrs. Albert Falter Accepted By Beta Kappa Tau In Candlelight Ceremony.

IN A LOVELY candlelight ceremony held in the Mansfield-Leland club room at 7:30 Thursday night, Beta Kappa Tau sorority welcomed Miss Hilda Bellamey, Miss Margaret Kissling and Mrs. Albert Falter into active membership. This formal initiation ceremony completed the sorority's rush season.

Sponsors and pledges gathered before a banquet table centered with an attractive floral arrangement of American Beauty roses and delphinium. The three-branch candelabra furnished the only illumination.

Miss Louise Enderle opened the ceremonies with a prayer. Scripture reading by Miss Maxine Rimmer, secretary, Mrs Peter Merschdorf, treasurer, and Mrs F. B. Ackerman, vice-president, followed. The poem, "If," by Kipling, was read by the president, Mrs. John Baki

Sponsors, in presenting pledges for active membership, gave each pledge a corsage of roses and delphinium, tied with ribbon of dubonnet and blue, the sorority colors. Mrs. Carol Kelly, in behalf of the sorority, proposed a toast to the new members Miss Bellamey responded for the pledges.

Mrs. Baki read the constitution and commented on recent changes in the by-laws Small, individual candles, lighted from the president's candle, were burning during the recitation of the sorority pledge by all members Copies of the constitution, bound in dubonnet and blue, were given each sorority sister.

At the completion of the ceremonies, a luncheon was served at a U-shaped table decorated with appointments in the sorority colors.

Committee for this event was headed by Miss Eleanor Star, and assisting her were Mrs. Baki, Mrs. Ackerman and Miss Rimmer.

ENGINEERED SILHOUETTE

By DOROTHY ROE
(AP Fashion Editor)

Listen, my children, and you shall hear the story of a great engineer—the modern American dress designer.

She's no Casey Jones, and she might not know a bridge girder from a jumping rope—but she can draw a blueprint of style.

She has turned the neatest trick of the year, in producing the "engineered silhouette" which is the pride and joy of the New York Dress Institute this season. No mechanical blueprint is drawn with more exacting care than goes into the plotting, planning and specifications for a dress that must adapt itself without a ripple to the varying figures of ten thousand women.

Shown here is a perfect example of the new silhouette, which fits like a second skin, yet has no trace of skimpiness. The carefully manipulated waistline, the bias-cut bodice, the body-molding torso tucks are all tricks of the trade which achieve a fluid, sheathlike line with a minimum of yardage.

MRS. E. F. JAMESON WILL PRESENT 'REDEMPTION'

Samuel Selman, Baritone, Will Be Featured Soloist In Trilogy to Be Given Sunday Night at Park Avenue Baptist Church.

AT 8 P. M. SUNDAY, in the Park Avenue Baptist church, Mrs. Edith Fletcher Jameson will present Samuel Selman, baritone, with the church choir in the "Redemption."

Mr. Selman is a native of New York City. His vocal studies were with the renowned Oscar Seagle. He attended the Institute of Musical Art of the Juilliard School of Music, and later resumed his studies in Paris, France.

Mr. Selman has given concerts through the East and Midwest. He came to the faculty of Ashland college this fall from William Woods college in Fulton, Mo. This appearance will be Mr. Selman's first in Mansfield. Other solos will be given by members of the choir.

The "Redemption" is a sacred trilogy. The original text and music is by Charles Gounod. This work is a lyrical setting-forth of the three great facts on which depends the existence of the Christian church.

These facts are the passion and death of the Savior, His life on earth from His resurrection to His ascension and the spread of Christianity in the world through the mission of the apostles.

The three parts of the present trilogy are preceded by a prologue on the creation, the fall of our first parents, and the promise of a redeemer. It is descriptive of chaos. The instrumental march represents the brutality of the pagan forces, dragging Jesus to execution, the crucifixion and death upon the cross, the resurrection and the ascension

The music is both tender and dramatic. Gounod first conceived the idea of writing the Redemption in the autumn of 1867 It was not completed until 12 years later. The first performance was given at the musical festival at Birmingham, England, in 1882

These festivals have continued through the years It was as soloist on one of these occasions that Edith Fletcher Jameson embarked upon her professional career.

The public is cordially invited when Mrs. Jameson presents Gounod's "Redemption" Sunday night.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

"Oh, oh!" I gasped; "the abysmal, lying fiend!"

"Did you say lying?" he asked "Why of course I said lying," I told him hotly. "Jack is my brother-cousin, you know I was brought up with him from babyhood, and I know exactly what he could and could not be induced to do His neglect of Katharine and his moodiness were inexplicable it is true, until we found the key in Ruth Hayes' treachery But even if he believed the worst of Katharine, he never would take an action that would hold her up to public scorn."

"Please forgive me, Hal pleaded penitently. "I had no business to say that, but I have brooded over the whole situation so long that this last development made me go a little insane, I think."

"What did you tell her?" I asked.

"The only thing I could tell her 'I shall try to get the information you wish,' I said, 'but it will take time'

"'None of that stalling'" she said. "Three days from now at this hour I'll be in the office. See that you have the information I want at your finger tips then—or else.'

"She then left quickly, and I started immediately on my quest for Katharine.

'How much more time have you?" I asked.

Until day after tomorrow," he said

"Good!" I commented. 'That will give my father a chance to lay his plans"

"But," he said anxiously, 'will she be able to carry out her threat? You know what a story like that would do—

Merely Bluffing.

"Don't worry about that another minute," I said In the first place, no newspaper would touch a story like that without proof, and she is too hard-headed herself not to know that She is bluffing, but it may be a good idea to let her think she has succeeded in her bluff My father will have to decide that He will be here within the hour and I wish you would stay until he arrives"

'I shall be glad to ' he said

'Sit still," I said, as he started to rise when I did I'm going to steal in now and see if Katharine is awake"

I found Katharine sitting tensely in the easy chair and noted how excitement had enhanced the delicate beauty which she has kept even into middle age No wonder Hal Meredith had loved her all the years, I thought

"Well?" she said with an upward inflection

'He has a strange and evil story to tell you," I said "Meantime I have been able to straighten him out on certain misconceptions he had as to Jack. I do not think you need fear to see him, Katharine. I think he is accepting his fate"

Her eyes were suddenly soft and misty.

'Dear Hal'" she said "No woman ever had a truer lover, a more faithful friend'

"I think it might comfort him to hear that from your own lips I said. 'Suppose you go in now and tell him I said he was to tell you his story himself I will stay in here until you call me"

"The Authority on Authorities"

FAVOR THE MAJOR

WHEN THERE is a suit in which your side possesses a total of eight cards, you can nearly always take ten tricks with it as trump more safely than you can take nine at No Trumps That is not necessarily so if the dummy has a 4-3-3-3 distribution with no short place to use its trumps But when any other distribution prevails, you will usually find that an eight-card major suit offers a better game try than No Trumps, even when all suits are stopped

1 ♥	2 ♦	2 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 NT

South blamed North, after this deal, for the side never reaching a heart game, which was unstoppable, as there was no need to lose anything in that contract except two tricks in clubs and one in trumps, as two diamonds could be ruffed. It was his contention that North should have raised hearts on his second turn instead of calling 3-Clubs The fact that this raise was not given on the first round could not have misled South into thinking he had four-card support in case South had only a four-card suit.

South is really the one who fumbled, however. Not so much by bidding No Trumps on his second turn, but by not then rebidding it 3-Hearts when North's 3 Clubs came to him That would have let North know he had a five-carder, and the latter would then have gone to 4-Hearts in rubber bridge, which it was

The No Trump game was beaten quickly The diamond 10, covered by the K brought a hold-up from South, who took the third diamond. When he later lost to the club A, he was slaughtered by the rest of the diamonds.

THE 2nd WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON!

America....you've got to get tougher!

AMERICA — Let's be frank about it . . . so far, many of us back home have been fighting this war from an easy chair.

Many of us have bought War Bonds out of extra cash, out of money we didn't miss too much. We haven't been really tough with ourselves.

But this war is a hard, down-to-reality war. And many of our boys are dying in it.

We've got to buy MORE

So your government asks you to buy Bonds and more Bonds — to get really tough with yourself. We're asking you to give up the frills and "extras" for the rest of this war.

We know how human it is not to make sacrifices until the crisis drives us to it. In England they felt the same way until the bombs started falling. Now they can't do enough!

Bombs are such persuasive things. But just as persuasive ought to be the spirit of our brothers, sons, husbands — who are ready to give all. Think now . . . what are your dollars, compared to their lives?

If you could see

Look at it this way — suppose you had a magic carpet that could take you to Africa and New Guinea. Suppose you could hear the groan of American boys wounded, and American boys dying . . . Say now, how many Bonds would you buy?

That kind of war

THEY . . . are dying. And they will keep on dying until we drown the enemy in an overwhelming torrent of bombs, bullets, guns, tanks, planes, ships, and shells.

That's why we're asking you, in this one month of April alone, to lend Uncle Sam 13 billions of dollars — by buying War Bonds. 13 billions of extra dollars — over and above any buying that you'd be doing anyway!

A lot of money

13 billion dollars is a lot of money. It'll take sweat and tears to raise it. It'll mean going without now. But also — it will mean saving now — to buy later. It'll mean giving up everything you can't square with your conscience, so that we, us, our children, can have a more decent place to live in when this war is won.

The drive is on

So, if someone calls on you to ask you to buy War Bonds in this 2ND WAR LOAN DRIVE, will you buy to the limit — and then buy more?

Better yet, will you go to your Bank, Postoffice, or wherever you're used to buying your Bonds — and buy NOW? Will you lend extra money this month? Money that can hasten the day of Victory? Money that can help to save American lives?

Money buys money

Remember, what you're really buying with your money is still more money. For after all, these Bonds are money! Money plus! Every dollar you put into War Bonds will bring you a dollar plus interest.

So the more Bonds you buy the better for you. Americans — Get Tough — with yourselves — for your country.

There Are 7 Different Types of U. S. Government Securities—Choose The Ones Best Suited for You:

United States War Savings Bonds—Series E: The perfect investment for individual and family savings. Gives you back $4 for every $3 when the Bond matures. Designed especially for the smaller investor. Dated 1st day of month in which payment is received. Interest: 2.9% a year if held to maturity. Denominations: $25, $50, $100, $500, $1000. Redemption: any time 60 days after issue date. Price: 75% of maturity value.

2½% Treasury Bonds of 1964-1969: Readily marketable, acceptable as bank collateral, these Bonds are ideal investments for trust funds, estates and individuals. A special feature provides that they may be redeemed at par and accrued interest for the purpose of satisfying Federal estate taxes. Dated April 15, 1943; due June 15, 1969. Denominations: $500, $1,000, $5000, $10,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000. Redemption: Not callable till June 15, 1964; thereafter at par and accrued interest on any interest date at 4 months' notice. Price: par and accrued interest.

Other Securities: Series "C" Tax Notes; ⅞% Certificates of Indebtedness; 2% Treasury Bonds of 1950-1952; United States Savings Bonds Series "F"; United States Savings Bonds Series "G."
